REBEL SAILORS ARE SUPREME

Black Sea Fleet Will Not Raise a Hand Against Mutineers.

CLEAR FOR ACTION

When the Revolutionists Show Fight Other Naval Vessels Sail Away.

ONE SHIP MAY SURRENDER

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

SEBASTOPOL, July 2. — Immediately after the Black sea squadron arrived here Saturday a council of admirals and captains was held on board the flagship Rostislav, Vice Admiral Kruger presiding. The council resolved to ungear the machinery and authorize the officers and men to go ashore. The Ekaterina II. is here and has been disarmed. This action is supposed to have been taken to forestall further mutiny of the crews on the warships.

The Black sea squadron which went to Odessa consisted of two divisions commanded by Admiral Kruger and Admiral Vishorevetsky, respectively. The former's division included the Rostislav and Sinope and the latter's the Georgi Pobiedonosetz, the Triu Sviatiella, the Dvenadzat Apostoloff and the torpedo cruiser Karaski. Several torpedo boats accompanied the squadron.

On arrival in the roads the flagship signaled the Kniaz Potemkine to join the squadron, to which the battleship replied: "We ask that the admiral should come on board us."

Mutineers Ready for Battle.

No answer being given the Kniaz Potemkine cleared for action and steamed at full speed along the whole fleet. She passed so close to the other vessels that even the features of her commander, who wore a thick beard and was in civilian clothes, were clearly distinguishable. Several among the crews assert that they saw at least 30 men in civilian costume on board the Kniaz Potemkine.

Admiral Kruger signaled to the squadron, "Head for Sebastopol," and at the same time the Kniaz Potemkine displayed the signal "We remain here."

Commander Gazevitch of the Georgi Pobiedonosetz signaled that the machinery of the vessel was disabled. Admiral Kruger repeated his order to make for Sebastopol when the Georgi Pobiedonosetz replied, "We remain here." She then steamed alongside the Kniaz Potemkine and hoisted the signal "We wish to hand you our officers." This was the last signal seen by the squadron before heading for Sebastopol.

Killed All the Ship's Officers.

Capt. Golikoff and all the officers of the Kniaz Potemkine except five, who were engineers, were killed June 28 on the voyage to Odessa. It is stated that 300 workmen from the Sermovo works were on board.

During the disorders in the port of Odessa the Kniaz Potemkine obtained supplies from the cruiser Otchakoff. The captain of the transport Vecha was made prisoner by a ruse. The Kniaz Potemkine signaled to him to come aboard. He did so and was seized and bound and put ashore. The crew of the Vecha then declared common cause with the crew of the Kniaz Potemkine, as did also the crew of one of the torpedo boats.

Whole Fleet Reported in Mutiny.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Mr. Meyer, American ambassador at St. Petersburg, in a cablegram to the state department received here at 5:30 p. m. yesterday and deciphered today, says Consul Heenan at Odessa reports that the fleet there was reported to have mutinied.

Consul Heenan made a similar report direct to the state department, his cablegram having been made public yesterday. The following statement regarding the ambassador's cablegram was made at the state department:

"The cable from Consul Heenan at Odessa of yesterday saying it was reported that the fleet there was in mutiny, was repeated by Ambassador Meyer later to the effect that it was reported that the fleet was in mutiny."

The dispatch was exceedingly brief. Its text was not made public.

Ask Emperor's Forgiveness.

ODESSA, July 2.—The crew of the Georgi Pobiedonosetz sent 40 men ashore this morning as hostages and have asked the emperor's forgiveness for having mutinied, pleading that they have not damaged the ship. There is still no news of the whereabouts of the Kniaz Potemkine.

The governor has issued a proclamation saying that the danger of a catastrophe has passed and that everybody must keep quiet and the strikers must return to work. The manufacturers are hopeful. They think that the situation is improving and that the men will resume work tomorrow.

The Kniaz Potemkine sailed yesterday apparently in the direction of the Roumanian coast and nothing has since been heard of her. With her departure the situation for the moment has taken a more favorable turn. The correspondent of the Associated Press has just been told officially that the mutinous crew of the Georgi Pobiedonosetz have informed the governor of their intention to surrender.

MAGOON NOW MINISTER TO PANAMA REPUBLIC

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 2.—President Roosevelt today authorized the announcement that he had appointed Charles E. Magoon as United States minister at Panama. Judge Magoon is governor of the canal zone in Panama and a member of the executive committee of the Isthmian canal commission. Prior to his appointment on the commission he was the law officer of the insular affairs bureau of the war department. He is in Panama at present, performing his duties in conjunction with the canal work.

The determination of the president to have the offices of governor of the American zone and minister to Panama filled by the same man was reached soon after the reorganization of the Isthmian canal commission two or three months ago. Experience had demonstrated that a conflict of authority was likely to arise between the governor and the minister, and in addition confusion was created among the Panamanians, particularly the officials of the republic, by the presence of two officers exercising similar powers.

It was well known that Gen. George W. Davis, former governor of the canal zone, and John Barrett, until recently minister to Panama, did not pull well together, although there was no open difficulty between them. To avert any possible trouble in the future that might be detrimental to the interests of this country or to those of Panama in the construction of the canal, the appointment of Judge Magoon to the two offices was determined upon.

It is known the designation of Judge Magoon as minister to Panama in connection with his appointment as governor of the American zone is notably pleasing to the officials and people at Panama.

MEAT PACKERS WILL FIGHT.

Indicted Members of the Beef Trust Will Attempt to Enjoin Government Prosecutors.

CHICAGO, July 2.—(Special.)—Strenuous efforts are to be made by the packers indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday to defeat the government's aim through injunction proceedings. The novel spectacle of defendants charged with criminal offenses seeking to restrain the prosecution from proving any violations of the law by them, may be seen in the United States circuit court, probably before Judge Grosscup, before the end of the month.

The packers thought it all over long ago, anticipating their indictment, and have authorized their special counsel, John S. Miller, to file their petition for an injunction at his discretion. In fact, the notices informing the federal officials that a petition would be filed asking for an injunction, have been prepared for service.

Attorney Miller stated today that the action seeking an injunction would be uncommon but not without precedent.

NEW WAR LOAN AT ONCE.

Financier Takahashi Says Japan Will Immediately Seek $150,000,000 in New York and London.

LONDON, July 2.—Korekiyo Takahashi, the financier of Japan, on his arrival here today definitely announced that Japan would take the earliest favorable moment to issue a new loan in New York and London and on the continent.

Details regarding the loan, he said, have not been settled, but it probably will be $150,000,000, and will be secured by the tobacco monopoly.

TAFT DOES NOT EXPECT THE STATE PORTFOLIO

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

OMAHA, NEB., July 2.—Secretary of War Taft and party, bound for the Philippine islands, arrived in Omaha this morning over the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, and left for the west over the Union Pacific railroad at 9:30 o'clock this evening. Secretary Taft said:

"I do not expect to become secretary of state. I telegraphed the president for instructions when we heard of Secretary Hay's death, and he ordered us to proceed. That does not look as if I am to be secretary of state."

The Taft party was joined by Lafayette Young, editor of the Des Moines Capitol, and Mrs. Young, who will accompany the party as far as Manila.

TIRED OF OLD WIFE, HUSBAND KILLS HER

He Confesses to Police He Had Wearied of Supporting Aged and Invalid Helpmate.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CLEVELAND, O., July 2.—That he had become tired of supporting his old wife, who had become an invalid, was the excuse for killing her last Friday afternoon which August Otto, a 63-year-old German, gave the police tonight when he confessed committing the crime.

Otto walked into an undertaker's shop Friday evening, requesting that proper attention be given the body of his wife, who, he said, had fallen down stairs and killed herself. The woman's head was almost hacked to pieces, and bloodstains led to a hatchet found in the barn.

Otto was arrested, but denied his guilt. Tonight he admitted his guilt, and stated that he had done the deed with a mallet. The man speaks no English, and is supposed to be mentally deranged.

The couple had been married almost 40 years, and have several grown-up children. Mrs. Otto had been in poor health for some time.

VARDAMAN'S THREAT TO A NEGRO ASPIRANT

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

JACKSON, MISS., July 2.—Gov. Vardaman today gave out a statement based on a telegram from Greenwood that a negro had stood the civil service examination for a clerkship in the Greenwood postoffice, and had insisted on being named as clerk during the absence of one of the regular clerks. The governor says:

"I am in hope the negro's respect for public opinion will cause him to resign or decline the place. I sincerely hope the white people of Greenwood will have too much respect for themselves to permit him to hold it. This incident presents an ever recurring phase of the race problem, which must be met promptly, handled prudently, but at all times with unflinching firmness by the white people of the south. My observation and close study of the race problem, the negro side of it in particular, convinces me that when you give the negro an inch he will go another, or some other extreme beyond the limit of prudence.

"This little incident reminds me again of President Roosevelt's profound interest, infinite affection and great consideration for the general welfare of the white people of the south. Such conduct is calculated to inspire all decent white people of the south with great love for him."

CITIES OF SWEDEN ARE DECLARED TO BE WAR PORTS

STOCKHOLM, July 2.—The government has issued a proclamation, to become effective immediately, declaring Stockholm, Carlskrona, Gothenburg and Farosund to be war ports and excluding all foreign warships from these ports.

Determined to Have Library.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., July 2.—(Special.)—Even though the farmers of Lee killed in special town meeting the offer of Andrew Carnegie for a new library building, the Library association is now going to buy a lot and get the $10,000, if possible, on its own responsibility.

OFFICERS USE ENGINE TO OVERTAKE ROBBERS

Train Crew on Discovering Thieves Summon the Police and Run Down the Fugitives—Detective Lutz Shoots One.

Filling his engine with officers, a freight engineer on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad early yesterday morning ran his engine from Braddock to McKeesport and caused the capture of five men, after one of them had been brought down by a bullet from a rifle in the hands of County Detective Jeremiah Lutz. After the injured man, John O'Donnell, aged 23, of Fourteenth street, McKeesport, was taken to the McKeesport hospital, the four prisoners were taken back to Braddock on the engine and locked up.

While the freight train was passing the beer storage house of James F. McCleevy at Third street and the Lake Erie railroad, Braddock, the train crew discovered the door was open. The train was running toward McKeesport and the crew kept a sharp lookout. At Dexter they discovered a crowd of men drinking beer from bottles. The engine was detached from the train and taken back to Braddock. A member of the crew called Detective Lutz, who lives in Braddock, and notified him of the robbery.

Lutz secured Officers Samuel Beam and John Myers of the Braddock police force. The three climbed into the engine cab and the engineer took them to Demmler station, where the officers found the men and dropped off the engine.

When the men saw them coming they started to run up the track. They had their pockets filled with bottled beer, which they threw away as they ran. They refused to stop when commanded and Detective Lutz fired his rifle toward the ground. The ball glanced and struck O'Donnell in the left leg and he dropped. The others then stopped running. O'Donnell is not seriously injured. At the Braddock lockup the prisoners gave their names as John Conley, aged 30; Benjamin Meine, aged 32; Martin Duffy, aged 32, and Patrick Eagan, aged 29, all residents of McKeesport. Conley and Meine claim they did not help rob the beer house.

THOUSAND KILLED BY CLOUDBURSTS

Mexico and Texas Suffer Great Loss of Life and Property by Floods.

WIDE AREA IS DEVASTATED

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CITY OF MEXICO, July 2.—In a cloudburst at Guanajuato and vicinity it is estimated that 1,000 lives were lost. In some streets the water is 20 feet deep. The town of Marafilo, terminus of the railroad just below Guanajuato, is wiped out. The Central northbound passenger train ran into a washout just north of Irapuato and was derailed, and is under water.

The Federal telegraph has a wire working through the Guanajuato office, but can get no word from there, leading to the belief that the operators lost their lives.

The only way the people can get to Marafilo is with mules or afoot. Telegraphic communication with Guanajuato is cut off, and it is supposed the "La Olla" dam was completely destroyed. The city is built in a great gorge in the mountains and the streets ramble up the mountain side in picturesque fashion. A storm began furiously on the night of June 30 and after midnight no one of the inhabitants dared to go to bed, so tremendous was the fury of the elements.

The raging water is carrying the dead through every street of Guanajuato.

DELRIO, TEXAS, July 2.—Eighteen lives are known to have been lost as a result of a cloudburst in the mountains above Las Vacas. Sixteen were Mexicans and two of the dead were American children washed away before the eyes of a panic-stricken crowd. The loss and damage to property is enormous, as the waters went through the fertile valley in a mighty flood. The loss in live stock is great.

OUTPUT IS INCREASED BY NEW OIL FIELDS.

The Independent Operations Interfere With the Standard's Uniform Production.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Figures were made public tonight by the United States geological survey which show how the discovery and operation of new oil fields have interfered with the uniform increase of the supply of oil which the Standard Oil Company had been placing on the market in recent years.

The government statistics are for the calendar year 1904. They show that the production of crude oil jumped from 100,-170,000 barrels in 1903 to 117,063,000 barrels in 1904. Furthermore, the average price per barrel dropped from 94.26 cents in 1903 to 86.4 cents in 1904. The increase in the output for 1904 was more than double the average increase before the new fields of which the Standard Oil Company has not yet obtained full control, were discovered.

The geological survey figures for 1904 show a marked increase of production in the new fields, but a decrease in the Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas fields, or else a production that holds the records of these oil fields merely stationary.

STOPS EXPORT OF RELICS

Mexico Is Being Impoverished to Enrich the Museums of Foreign Nations.

CITY OF MEXICO, MEXICO, July 2.—In order to stop the wholesale exportation of Mexican antiquities and the depletion of relics of past ages, the government is about to follow the example of Italy and other European countries by forbidding the sending abroad of art treasures and archaeological objects.

Ornaments of all sorts and articles of domestic use, discovered by means of excavation, and columns and reliefs from the wonderful temples of prehistoric times, have been going out of the country at an extraordinary rate, enriching private and public museums of foreign nations to the detriment of Mexican museums.

Italian Murders His Foreman.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., July 2.—Enraged because he had been discharged, Frank Bardi last night shot and mortally wounded James Turner, a foreman on the Deep Water railway in Wyoming county. Turner lived near Roanoke, Va., and had been here less than two weeks. The Italian is in jail.

Japanese Advance on Vladivostok.

LONDON, July 2.—The correspondent of the Morning Post at Shanghai says that the Japanese are advancing on Vladivostok and that a battle is imminent near the Tumen river.

HAY'S BODY ON LAST JOURNEY

Is Taken Over Lonely Mountain Road to a Special Train.

GOES TO CLEVELAND

Mrs. Hay and Her Son Clarence, With Relatives, Are Accompanying the Remains.

PRESIDENT GOES TOMORROW

NEWBURY, N. H., July 2.—A special train bearing the body of Secretary of State John Hay left Newbury today for Cleveland, O., where the interment will take place.

The funeral party consisted of Mrs. Hay, the widow; Clarence Hay, Dr. Charles L. Scudder of Boston, who attended Secretary Hay during his last illness; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mather of Cleveland, the latter a sister of Mrs. Hay, and S. A. Raymond, also a relative of Mrs. Hay. The train left here at 11:22 o'clock this forenoon, and is due to arrive in Cleveland at 7:30 a. m., tomorrow.

The body of the secretary, which had been placed in a casket last night, was brought down stairs from the death chamber and the casket enclosed in a rosewood box, in which it will repose until the funeral Wednesday. Mrs. Hay and Clarence Hay stood the trying ordeal bravely, although they showed plainly the effects of the strain which they had been under.

Early today the skies became overcast and a drenching rain began to fall. The narrow, winding mountain road was transformed into a channel of mud and was in a wretched condition when the time arrived for the sad journey.

Lonely Mountain Drive.

At about 9:40 o'clock an express wagon was driven from the stable to the front door of the house and the casket was borne by the servants and placed on the vehicle. The journey from "The Fells" to the station was over a distance of two and a half miles. The burial box, which was covered with a rubber blanket, had to be lashed to the wagon, the steepness of the hills making such a precaution necessary. It was followed only by the undertaker and Secretary Hay's coachman. Both men walked, the coachman leading the horse while the undertaker walked behind. Not a person was met along the lonely mountain road, and the window shades of the few scattered farmhouses along the route were drawn. The rain fell in torrents as the little party trudged over the muddy roads.

Citizens Help Transfer Casket.

The wagon was driven to the rear of the funeral car and several Newbury citizens assisted the undertaker and coachman in transferring the casket. At the moment when the casket was placed on board the train there was a rift in the clouds, and for the first and only time during the day the lofty hills were bathed in sunshine. Less than five minutes later the rain began to fall again.

Shortly after 11 o'clock a closed carriage was driven to the station. Clarence Hay was the first to alight, and Mr. Mather, Mrs. Mather, Mrs. Hay, Dr. Scudder and Mr. Raymond followed. Mrs. Hay walked unaided to the train, and was quickly joined by her son in her stateroom. The other members of the party occupied a portion of the car.

The train was due to leave on its westward journey at 11:30 o'clock, but inasmuch as the track was clear and there was no necessity of remaining longer at Newbury, the train started 10 minutes ahead of the time arranged.

Details of Funeral.

Additional details regarding Secretary Hay's funeral were announced at "The Fells" today. In response to an invitation from the officers of the Cleveland chamber of commerce, the body of the secretary will repose in the chamber of commerce building from the time it reaches Cleveland tomorrow until the hour of the funeral on Wednesday. The body will not lie in state.

The Hay residence in Euclid avenue, Cleveland, has been rented for a long time, and Mrs. Hay accepted the invitation of the chamber of commerce rather than have the body of her husband remain in a receiving tomb.

During the stay in Cleveland Mrs. Hay and Clarence Hay will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mather. The funeral services will be conducted in the Wade Memorial chapel on Wednesday by the Rev. Hiram C. Hadyn, pastor of the Old Stone church, the Presbyterian church which Mr. Hay attended in Cleveland, and he will be assisted by the Rev. Dr. Teunis Hamlin, pastor of the Church of the Covenant in Washington.

President Will Attend.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Secretary Loeb practically has completed arrangements for President Roosevelt's trip to Cleveland to attend the funeral of Mr. Hay. The funeral will take place at 11 o'clock next Wednesday morning, and as the journey from Oyster Bay to Cleveland will consume nearly 25 hours, it will be necessary for the president to leave here Tuesday afternoon. He will make the trip on a special train over the Pennsylvania railroad, leaving here about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. At Philadelphia the president will be joined by members of his cabinet, who will accompany him to the funeral of Mr. Hay.

The president will reach Cleveland about 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. He will remain there only a few hours, the special train being scheduled to start on the return trip at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The president will go direct to Oyster Bay, arriving there about 11 o'clock a. m. Thursday. Members of the cabinet who accompany the president will leave the special train at Philadelphia and return to Washington.

Hay's Pew Draped.

Mr. Hay's pew in the Church of the Covenant was draped in black today, and a large floral piece of lilies of the valley was placed there. An appropriate tribute to his memory was read from Dr. Tunis S. Hamlin, the pastor of the church, who is now out of the city.

Chief Clerk Michael of the state department pointed out today that Mr. Hay was the third secretary of state who died in office, the other being Abil P. Upshur of Virginia and Walter Q. Gresham of Indiana.

"Secretary Hay," said Col. Michael today, "loved his old friends best, but was quick to appreciate sincere friendship in new ones and took great pains to cultivate it. He hated hypocrisy, and despised pompous use of official power. He loved sweet intercourse and could not bear friction."

ALBANY, N. Y., July 2.—The body of Secretary of State John Hay passed through Albany this evening, arriving over the Boston & Albany at 7:40 and leaving for Cleveland over the New York Central at 8:40. Assemblyman James Wadsworth, Jr., of Genessee, who is a son-in-law of Mr. Hay, joined the funeral party in this city.

NEGOTIATIONS ON FOOT FOR AN ARMISTICE

They Are Probably Taking Place at Washington, According to Russian Information.

(Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.)

ST. PETERSBURG, July 3.—Negotiations for an armistice between the armies of Russia and Japan, it can be definitely stated, are in progress, presumably at Washington, but they have not reached a stage where any further announcement can be made. The decision seems to rest with Japan, which country is weighing the relinquishment of the prospects of bettering her present advantageous position against the enormous cost in lives and money of another great battle.

The chances for a decisive and final Japanese victory, it is believed here, are no better now than before Liao Yang and Mukden, and it is pointed out that it is idle to talk of Vladivostok falling like a ripe apple into Japan's hands before the peace conference meets.

The emperor has received the following telegram from Gen. Linevitch:

"On the morning of June 29 our outposts retreated before a vigorous advance on Beihe, but on the arrival of our reinforcements the enemy retired. On the same morning the Japanese advanced from Nanshanchensi to Loguchan and from Julantsi to Wanheku."

MORMONS HATCH A PLOT TO SEIZE RESERVATION

Gentiles Get Wind of It and Form Counter Movement—Will Notify the President of Conspiracy.

(Special Telegram to The Gazette.)

SALT LAKE, UTAH, July 2.—Gentiles who desire to secure good homes on the Uintah Indian reservation, to be opened next September, will be offered special inducements to take part in the drawing by an organization of non-Mormons, formed to defeat a Mormon church scheme to seize all the desirable sites in the reservation.

A letter has been sent out under the direction of the first presidency to the lesser officials of the Mormon church, instructing them to organize all the young Mormons in the various wards to get hold of the reservation before the Gentiles come in. One sentence of the letter reads: "We are acquainting ourselves with tracts of land which we feel are most desirable for settlement and which, through land office connections being formed by us, can be chosen by those who may be in touch with us."

The publication of a copy of this letter today aroused the Gentiles, who are preparing to open an information bureau and begin a regular colonization propaganda in opposition to the Mormon plan. President Roosevelt will be asked to issue instructions that will make difficult the carrying out of the Mormon plot. The reservation contains about 2,500,000 acres.

DEATH ON SCENIC RAILWAY.

Car Strikes Obstruction, Occupants Are Thrown Out, and One Is Killed by Another Car.

CHICAGO, July 2.—Lee Reynolds of Whiting, Ind., was instantly killed and Mrs. Rose Manning and Mrs. Charles Brown of Chicago were severely injured today on the scenic railway at White City, an amusement park.

The car in which young Reynolds and the two women were riding struck an obstruction, was derailed and the occupants thrown out. Reynolds rolled back on its track in the path of another car and was instantly killed. The women will recover.

MR. ROOSEVELT WINS POINT FOR PEACE—MUTINY STUPIFIES RUSSIAN ADMIRALTY

PRESIDENT ENDS WORK FOR PEACE

THEY HAVE FULL POWER

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 2.—Official announcement was made by President Roosevelt today of the names of the Russian and Japanese envoys to the Washington peace conference. The character and ability of the men selected by both belligerents is an earnest of the desire of their respective governments to conclude, if possible, the tragedy being enacted in the far east. The plenipotentiaries are:

The Russians—Ambassador Muravieff, former minister of justice and now ambassador to Italy; and Baron Rosen, recently appointed as ambassador to the United States to succeed Count Cassini.

Japanese—Baron Komura, minister of foreign affairs, and Kogoro Takahira, minister to the United States.

By direction of the president Secretary Loeb made the formal announcement in the following statement:

The president announces that the Russian and Japanese governments have notified him they have appointed the plenipotentiaries to meet here as soon after the first of August as possible. The two Russian plenipotentiaries are Ambassador Muravieff, formerly minister of justice and now ambassador at Rome, and Ambassador Rosen. The Japanese plenipotentiaries are Baron Komura, now minister of foreign affairs, and Minister Takahira.

It is possible that each side may send one or more additional representatives. The plenipotentiaries of both Russia and Japan will be intrusted with full power to negotiate and conclude a treaty of peace, subject of course, to ratification by their respective home governments.

Question of Power.

A day or two ago the Russian and Japanese governments formally communicated to President Roosevelt the names of the plenipotentiaries they respectively had selected. Acting as intermediary, the president communicated the names of the Japanese envoys to the St. Petersburg government and those of the Russian representatives to the government at Tokyo. Having received from both governments assurances that the selections were satisfactory, the president, according to his agreement with the belligerents, authorized the public announcement of the envoys.

Some delay was occasioned in the selection of the plenipotentiaries by the insistence of Japan that the envoys of both governments be clothed with full power to conclude peace and to negotiate a permanent treaty. The Japanese government indicated pointedly that the emperor would not permit his envoys to enter upon a tentative conference in which Japan was to define its terms and then let Russia decide whether the conferees should proceed with their deliberations. The Tokyo government insisted that the plenipotentiaries should have conferred on them treaty-making powers and that the negotiations should be entered upon in a spirit of perfect sincerity.

President Gains His Point.

Such, too, was the position taken by President Roosevelt. He maintained that only by clothing the envoys with ample authority to act for their respective governments could a lasting peace be achieved. He strongly urged the St. Petersburg government to accede to what he regarded as a reasonable proposition of Japan. That he was successful in his presentation of the matter to the Russian emperor is indicated clearly in the statement which he issued today.

The president's announcement practically concludes the preliminary negotiations for peace. Minor details remain yet to be arranged, but the conference now seems to be assured. While no absolute date for the meeting of the envoys has been fixed, it has been determined that the first session will be held in Washington about the first of August.

Baron Rosen is already en route to the United States, coming to succeed Count Cassini as the Russian ambassador to this country. It is probable Ambassador Muravieff will start soon for the United States, accompanied by a considerable staff of secretaries, clerks and interpreters. The Japanese contingent of officials and attaches, headed by Baron Komura, it is expected, will leave Japan in time to reach Washington by the first of August.

Peace Still in Abeyance.

No decision has yet been reached as to the place of holding the sessions of the conference. For the purpose of organization and to determine upon plans for the future, the plenipotentiaries will meet in Washington, but it is regarded as highly probable that at an early date thereafter they will adjourn to hold the business sessions of the conference in some city on the North Atlantic seaboard. In this connection the word "here" in the official statement issued today is likely to be misunderstood. It means merely "in this country."

The sessions of the conference, of course, will not be held in Oyster Bay, although it is expected now the envoys of the two conferring powers will come to Oyster Bay to pay their respects to President Roosevelt, and to receive his greetings. This trip to the president's home probably will be made in two warships, the Mayflower and the Dolphin being under consideration for the mission.

LONDON, July 2.—A dispatch from the Associated Press at New York was the first intimation London had of the definite appointment of the Russian and Japanese delegates to the peace conference at Washington. When the news was communicated to the foreign embassies and the officials here everyone expressed great delight at the successful issue of President Roosevelt's efforts.

London Diplomats Surprised.

They were surprised that the delegates were empowered to conclude a treaty of peace, as it was feared that Russia would hold out for ratification by the government. One diplomat said that it was a great diplomatic achievement, and if President Roosevelt succeeded in inducing the belligerents to agree to an armistice before another great battle is fought his triumph would be complete. He felt the selection of Baron Rosen as one of the delegates was a happy choice, as the Japanese have great respect for him.

The diplomat pointed out that at the breaking off of diplomatic relations by Japan and Russia the whole Japanese nation expressed its sympathy with Baron Rosen, who was then minister to Japan, and during his progress through the streets of Tokyo, when he was leaving for Russia, the people bared their heads and stood in silence.

Some surprise is expressed here that Marquis Ito was not appointed as one of the delegates, but it is thought this possibly was due to the belief that Foreign Minister Komura and Minister Takahira are better acquainted with the present condition of affairs.

HIS OWN WORDS CONDEMN PARENT

So Declares Hendricks' Attorney of James H. Hyde's Defense of Father.

BOTH ARE HEAVILY SCORED

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 2.—Before leaving for the west to join Secretary Taft's party to the Philippines, Congressman M. E. Driscoll, who was the investigating attorney for Superintendent of Insurance Hendricks in the Equitable investigation, made a statement on the letter of James H. Hyde to the board of directors of the Equitable Life Assurance society some days ago. Congressman Driscoll said:

"Hyde's protest against the reflections on his father's memory is quite natural, and if his arguments were based on facts and common sense it would appeal very strongly to human sympathy and even prejudice, but, according to my opinion, his defense only verifies and strengthens the charge preferred in the Hendricks report. Out of his own mouth he convicts his father of reaping large profits during many years at the expense of the trust which it was his solemn obligation to protect. It is true, as James H. Hyde states, that the society owes its existence to his father, and that its success in the main is due to his efforts, and it is also true that his father inaugurated the system of subsidiary or affiliated companies by which he and his friends continued to milk the society.

The Mercantile Trust Deal.

"He states some of the early history of the Mercantile Trust Company and the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, that the Equitable society, in about the year 1872, purchased a controlling interest in the Mercantile Trust Company, and in 1873 increased its capital stock from $500,000 to $1,000,000, and in 1875 increased it from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000, and that the Equitable society had always owned a controlling interest in the Mercantile Trust Company. He further states that a part of the business of the Mercantile Trust Company, in about the year 1875, was safe deposit business, but in that year, after full discussion among its directors and stockholders, it was determined the Mercantile Trust Company should sell out the Safe Deposit Company business to another company. In order to do so the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company was organized with a capital stock of $300,000.

"Mr. Hyde says the lease now criticised was then in existence, and was assigned to and assumed by the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company upon its organization. In that statement, I think, he errs, because the lease now in existence is dated in 1884. Perhaps there was a prior lease, and probably it was as onesided in favor of the Mercantile Trust Company as the present lease is in favor of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company. He says the books were open for all directors in the Mercantile Trust Company and the Equitable society to subscribe for stock in the new corporation, the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company; that others did not take it very promptly, and his father took most of it and paid $200,000 in cash to the Mercantile Trust Company for its lease of the safe deposits.

Tells of Father's Greed.

"Right here let me ask, why was it that $200,000 in cash were paid to the Mercantile Trust Company for the lease of those safe deposit company's vaults unless it was a one-sided lease substantially like the present one? Why was such a one-sided lease made by the Equitable society to the Mercantile Trust Company? Simply because Mr. Henry B. Hyde dominated the Equitable society absolutely and made a jug-handled lease with the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, in which he had stock and could profit thereby.

"But why was this profitable lease sold for $200,000 in cash? Because the Equitable society owned a majority of the stock of the Mercantile Trust Company and would indirectly receive a large part of the profits of this very profitable lease. That was not profitable enough to Mr. Henry B. Hyde. He, therefore, created the new organization and named it the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, got all the stock and therefore got all the profits and the society suffered all the loss.

"Again he says that his father subsequently offered this stock to the Equitable society at cost to him, and this offer was declined after the directors of the society and its legal advisers had looked carefully into the whole matter and it was decided for the best interests of the society instead of purchasing this stock to continue the lease which is now criticized.

"Think of this argument. His father, as owner of all or practically all of the stock of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, offered it to the Equitable society, which his father absolutely dominated, and because the society, controlled as it was by his father, declined this offer, he has the nerve to suggest that was fair dealing with the policy-holders.

More of Founder's Deals.

"Again, he says his father took all the stock ($25,000) of the Equitable Safe Deposit Company of Boston, which was the predecessor of the Security Safe Deposit Company, now in existence, at the request of the board of directors of the Equitable society and that the Equitable society declined to take the stock. Again, Henry B. Hyde, as president and boss of the Equitable society, considered it unwise to buy this stock, but a very wise and very profitable investment on his own private account.

"Again, he states that the committee recommended that the Equitable Safe Deposit Company should be reorganized on a basis of a capital of $200,000, and in order to make the Safe Deposit Company's vaults more attractive the society should rent the building adjoining its own and devote a portion of the rented building to the accommodation of the Safe Deposit Company. Consider what this means. Henry B. Hyde, as the Equitable society, rented another building in order to give the Safe Deposit Company, which he owned, more space, and rented it for 100 years or more at $100 a year, and out of the rents gave the society only $100 a year and the Safe Deposit Company $15,000.

"Again, he says his father organized the Security Safe Deposit Company of Boston and paid the Mercantile Trust Company for the stock of the Equitable Trust Company, costing $25,000, the sum of $200,000 in cash, all of which were paid by him and his associates, and the greater part by himself.

Where Did Money Come From?

"Let me ask right here where his father got those large amounts of money. I was told by an old employe of the society that in 1866 Henry B. Hyde's salary was $2,500 a year. Did his salary in the Equitable society provide him with those large sums on which he took those great risks which he feared would be unprofitable for the society to take?

"Again, the Mercantile Trust Company comes in. It was controlled by the Equitable society and therefore by Mr. Hyde, and was a very useful factor in the various manipulations conducted by Mr. Hyde. James H. Hyde says the Mercantile Trust Company in 1884 owned the building in St. Louis known as the Equitable building. How did it come to own it? I heard, but I am not sure of this fact, that the Equitable society had a mortgage on it. The mortgage was foreclosed and the Mercantile Trust Company, instead of the society, bid it in. But when the Mercantile Trust Company sold this property to the Equitable, it reserved the right to lease the safe deposit vaults in said building, should such vaults be built.

Society Got Only $100.

"The vaults were built. Who built them? The Equitable Society. By whose money? The policy holders'. For what purpose? In order that a lease might be made to a new safe deposit company of which Henry B. Hyde owned practically all the stock that received all the profits, at the loss of the society. Because that lease provides that the society, after putting in all the new vaults, paying all the expenses of every kind in taking care of the safe deposit vaults, cleaning, sweeping, lighting, heating, watching, and etc., should receive the munificent sum of $100 while the new safe deposit company just organized was to receive $20,000 a year. And that lease runs for a couple hundred years, I think.

"Again, all the directors of the society and all the directors of the Mercantile Trust Company, and all the directors of the two safe deposit companies, were invited to subscribe for the stock of this new Missouri Safe Deposit Company and they declined, and Henry B. Hyde, the philanthropist, took all the stock, or practically all, at his own great risk and all the benefit of the society, in order that it might get $100 a year rent, while the safe deposit company which he owned, got $20,000. This self-sacrifice on the part of Mr. Hyde was altruistic.

"This juggling with facts and figures, with the Mercantile Trust Company constantly in evidence as a convenient medium in those manipulations, shows how the results set forth in the Hendricks' report were accomplished.

How Society Was Milked.

"The fact remains that since the year 1876 to the present time Henry B. Hyde and associates during his lifetime and since his death James H. Hyde and associates, have been realizing anywhere from $24,879.67 to $46,686.04 a year, all at the loss of the Equitable society, through the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company. Since the year 1877 they have realized $468,385.26 through the Security Safe Deposit Company, all at the expense of the society; and from the time the lease was made with the Missouri Safe Deposit Company in 1888, the society has only received $3,900 rent, while these same people have received about $20,000 a year, for the stock of the Safe Deposit Company has been paying 10 per cent on $200,000.

"This is one of the ways by which Henry B. Hyde became a multi-millionaire. This is one of the means by which James H. Hyde has been making money out of the society since his father's death, and Mr. James H. Hyde was quite an apt son, for when the question of the increase of the capital stock of the Equitable Trust Company from $500,000 to $1,000,000 came up, James H. Hyde, as chairman of the executive and finance committees of the society, thought it was unwise for the society to take its share of that allotment, but it was a very wise thing for him to take his own share and a very large portion of that which belonged to the society.

"I wish every policy-holder of the society would read Mr. Hyde's letter to which I have just referred; read it carefully and bear in mind all the time that Henry B. Hyde absolutely controlled the society, and when it is stated that it declined to do certain things, it was simply Henry B. Hyde who declined to do those things. Henry B. Hyde represented a great trust on one side, the money of the policy-holders, and on the other he represented his own private interests. He controlled both. He loved money. What show did the society have in those transactions?"

BARON ROSEN HAS SHOWN RUSSIA'S HAND

ST. PETERSBURG, July 3.—An interview attributed to Baron Rosen, one of the Russian plenipotentiaries for the peace conference at Washington, by a French news agency, is printed here. It quotes Baron Rosen as saying Russia is willing to pay the expenses of the war within certain limits. Russians are unwilling to believe Baron Rosen is responsible for what is regarded as an indiscreet showing of Russia's cards, and a disavowal of the interview is demanded.

DANIEL H. MALONEY DIES IN CLEVELAND

Prominent Local Railroad Man Stricken With Heart Failure.

Daniel Henry Maloney, one of the most prominent men in Pittsburgh railroad circles, died suddenly at his home in Cleveland yesterday morning at 5:30 o'clock as a result of heart failure superinduced by rheumatism and nervous prostration.

Mr. Maloney, who was 47 years old, was general agent here, in charge of both the freight and passenger departments for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad and the 'Frisco system in the Pittsburgh district. He was widely known and had an enviable reputation as a worker and proficient railroad man.

Mr. Maloney was born near Niagara Falls, N. Y., and entered the railroad business in the passenger office of the Erie railroad at Niagara Falls when quite young. He was later transferred to the Buffalo office of the Erie company, in which city he was married. About 20 years ago he accepted a position as traveling freight agent of the Nickel Plate road with headquarters in Cleveland, where he remained for many years. He then became commercial agent of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad at Cleveland, and on November 1, 1903, was promoted into the position of general agent of both freight and passenger departments of the same road in the Pittsburgh district, with headquarters here. About one year ago the same interests secured control of the 'Frisco system, and Mr. Maloney was made general agent of both freight and passenger departments of both systems, and the offices were combined here. He was preparing to bring his family here for permanent residence when death occurred.

Mr. Maloney was a member of the Monongahela and Tariff clubs of this city and the Transportation club of Cleveland. He was an active Mason and earnest worker in Masonic circles, being a Knight Templar, Scottish Rite man and member of Al Koran Shriners' temple of Cleveland. He was also a consistent Presbyterian. He is survived by a widow and two daughters, Louise and Martha. Funeral services will be held at his late home, 23 North avenue, Cleveland, Wednesday afternoon.

PROVEDENTO IS DYING.

Identifies Antonio Thomas as the Man Who Stabbed Him.

Angelo Provedento is dying in the Mercy hospital with a stiletto wound in his abdomen. The police say that late Saturday night Antonio Thomas of Glenwood avenue, and Provedento were drinking in the latter's home, 78 Flowers avenue. The men quarreled over a woman and Thomas ran his stiletto into Provedento.

The police took Provedento and Michael Palumbo, a boarder, to the police station. There Palumbo said Thomas did the cutting. Thomas was arrested later and taken to the station house, where both Provedento and Palumbo identified him as the assailant. Thomas was locked up and Provedento taken to the hospital.

UNABLE TO COPE WITH THE REVOLT

St. Petersburg Hears of the Nation's Submission to Rebellious Sailors.

STUNNING BLOW TO THE CZAR

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, July 2.—The unprecedented spectacle of a powerful modern battleship cruising around in the Black sea in the hands of a crew who under the rules of international law cannot be regarded as other than pirates, and of the admiral in command of the rest of the Euxine fleet frankly confessing his inability to cope with the situation and ordering the fires of his warships to be drawn, has stupified the Russian admiralty.

The whereabouts of the battleship Kniaz Potemkine is unknown here, no plans for capturing her have been devised, and the policy of non-interference seems to be at present in vogue. The situation would furnish a libretto for a comic opera were not the elements of the plot so serious.

Dispatches from Odessa and Sebastopol, which are confirmed by the admiralty, clear up fully the present situation. The Kniaz Potemkine has sailed from Odessa and is now at large, and her crew, reinforced by sympathizers from shore, is still in control of the vessel.

Admiral Cowed by Mutineers.

On the Georgi Pobiedonosetz, which cast in its fortunes with the Kniaz Potemkine after its arrival at Odessa and landed its officers, the more loyal or more timorous portion of the crew again gained the upper hand and agreed to surrender and disarm the ship. The rest of the squadron returned to Sebastopol without venturing to take up the gauntlet thrown down by the mutineers on the Kniaz Potemkine, and Admiral Kruger, after a council of war, finding that he could not depend on his crews, ordered the fires drawn beneath the boilers of his ships and gave permission to all disaffected officers and sailors to quit the vessels and go ashore. The sailors of the Ekaterina II. were known to be so mutinous that the battleship was left behind when the squadron started for Odessa, the whole crew dismissed and the ship disarmed.

The Kniaz Potemkine, which was steering a southerly course when she left Odessa, would be in a few hours south of Russian limits and may next be heard from at some Balkan or Turkish port.

Explains Defeat by Japan.

The spirit manifested throughout the fleet goes far to explain the defeat in the sea of Japan, as a large part of the crews, especially those of Admiral Nebogatoff's division, were drafted from the Euxine sea, and evidently were not in a mind to offer a stout fight.

The proclamation attached to the dead body of the Kniaz Potemkine sailor Omiltchuk at Odessa, the text of which was received yesterday, confirms the statement of the officers that the revolt was engineered by social revolutionists. The proclamation terminated with the slogan of the party:

"One for all and all for one."

This makes the situation more serious than would have been the matter of simple disaffection, and gives rise to the greatest apprehension that the revolutionary organization may have conducted an equally successful propaganda among the soldiers, the results of which will be suddenly manifested when the army is called upon in some internal emergency.

Though no permission was given to print the details, the latest developments are now known to all circles in St. Petersburg. The Tsarry, a paper which has been dormant for some time, and therefore responsible to the censorship, has been revived and has printed an extra edition, giving full details of the mutiny and rioting at Odessa. Copies were snatched from the newsboys and read with avidity everywhere.

Long mail accounts at Odessa up to Thursday night have arrived and have helped the public to become fully acquainted with the situation.

Up to 3 o'clock this morning no news as to the whereabouts of the Kniaz Potemkine had been received in St. Petersburg.

population, as public excitement and the exodus of people continue. Telegraph offices are crowded and the consulates are overwhelmed with applications to vise passports.

The British consul has arranged with four British steamers and one Norwegian steamer to remain off the port so as to be in readiness in case of danger to remove foreign subjects. The captains of the steamers agreed to remain until the situation became clearer.

Military precautions have not undergone the slightest relaxation. The newspapers are under the military censorship and do not contain the slightest reference to the happenings in the harbor. An unconfirmed report says that the Kniaz Potemkine transferred a number of revolutionaries, including students and some Jewish girls, to a British steamer, the name of which is not given.

According to some reports the surrender of the Georgi Pobiedonosetz was conditional upon the crew being informed as to what their punishment would be. The vessel lies in the inner harbor in a position very unfavorable for bombarding the city. She is completely under the heavy guns now mounted in the boulevard overlooking the harbor.

LONDON, July 2.—Lloyd's agent at Kustenji, Roumania, in a dispatch dated 9:20 o'clock tonight, says the Kniaz Potemkine and torpedo boat No. 267 are anchored off that port and that another steamer is in the offing apparently watching.

KUSTENJI, ROUMANIA, July 2.—The commander of the Roumanian fleet boarded the Kniaz Potemkine and gave her permission to take water and provisions, pending instructions from Bucharest. The battleship has anchored within the 30-mile limit. The Russian gunboat Psesouape is also here, but has not communicated with the Kniaz Potemkine.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS CANCELLED

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau,
Room 16, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2.

Messages of condolence to the government, the president and officials of the state department over the death of Mr. Hay, coming from the representatives of foreign governments in the United States and the American diplomats abroad, flooded Acting Secretary of State Peirce today. A dispatch from Sir Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador, now at his summer place at Lenox, Mass., was one of the first to arrive. He transmitted the regrets of the British government according to instruction from Lord Lansdowne, and the sympathies of the English minister of foreign affairs himself. All of the messages were sent on to Oyster Bay.

The flags on several of the embassies and legations in Washington have been placed at half mast. The tenor of the messages of condolence which arrived today from the foreign diplomatic representatives in this country, with whom Secretary Hay had personal dealings, shows how deeply they have been touched by the sudden death.

Henry White, the American ambassador at Rome, is planning to hold memorial services in the American church in Rome on the day of the funeral. A dispatch from him to the state department received today asked for the exact time of the funeral, so that he might make proper arrangements.

Social Affairs Cancelled.

Social affairs and the usual Fourth of July receptions in the American embassies and legations in various parts of the world will not be held. The American flag, wherever displayed on an embassy, legation or consulate, is at half mast, in accordance to the instructions sent out by Acting Secretary of State Peirce. The government buildings here all have lowered flags, and Secretary Hay's room in the state department is draped with black.

At the suggestion of Acting Secretary of State Peirce, plans for a memorial service in Washington on the day of the funeral are being discussed here. Nothing definite has been done with regard to the matter. The state department will send a personal representative to Cleveland to attend the funeral, but just who this will be has not been decided.

As a mark of respect to the memory of the late secretary an American flag, bearing a badge of mourning, has been draped over the entrance to the building occupied by the bureau of American republics.

Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, in a communication to the state department, informed the acting secretary the flag over the legation here would be placed at half mast as a token of respect.

Condolences from Germany.

Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German ambassador, telegraphed President Roosevelt on behalf of his government and for himself messages of condolence and expressions of sympathy. The ambassador forwarded to President Roosevelt the following expression from the German government:

To the President of the United States of America, Oyster Bay:
Prince Buelow has requested me to convey to you, Mr. President, and to the American people, the expression of his deep sympathy on the demise of the secretary of state, John Hay. The chancellor profoundly appreciates the great loss which America has sustained through the death of this most distinguished statesman and diplomatist and eminent poet and writer.
STERNBERG.

Baron von Sternburg said today:

I had the honor to know Secretary of State John Hay for 20 years, and for the past five years I had been in close official contact with him. This to me was a special privilege in my diplomatic capacity. During this time I had occasion to become acquainted with his magnificent talents as a statesman, diplomatist and man of letters. His influence during his brilliant official career has been most highly beneficial to the peace and progress of the world.

Lord Lansdowne's Message.

Sir Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador, has telegraphed to the state department from his summer home at Lenox, Mass., expressions of profound regret and deep sympathy on behalf of his government and a personal expression from Lord Lansdowne. The ambassador's first dispatch follows:

Lord Lansdowne telegraphs to me that his majesty's government has heard with profound regret of the death of the Hon. John Hay, who was held in universal respect by the people of Great Britain. His majesty's government recognizes the great services rendered by Mr. Hay in promoting the friendly relations which so happily unite the two countries. They ask that an expression of their deep sympathy may be conveyed to the president in the loss which he has sustained. Lord Lansdowne desires me also to express his great personal regret of the news.
DURAND.

The following was received at the state department from the Brazilian ambassador Joaquin Nabuco, in New York:

I just received your sad communication, and thanking you for your courtesy, ask you kindly to convey to the president my deepest sense of the great loss the country and himself have suffered in the person of Mr. Hay. Please accept my condolence for yourself and the department of state.
JOAQUIN NABUCO.

Sympathy from Japan.

The state department is in receipt of a message of condolence from Kogoro Takahira, the Japanese minister, as follows:

In thanking you for your telegram of this date announcing the lamented death of the Hon. John Hay, secretary of state, I hasten to express the deepest sympathy of my government with that of the United States in their sad loss of so distinguished and honored a statesman and the heartfelt regrets of the members of this legation.
TAKAHIRA.

The condolences of the government of Austria-Hungary were conveyed in the following message telegraphed to the state department by Baron Giskra, the charge, from the summer home of the Austria-Hungary embassy at Lenox, Mass.:

Following instructions received, I have the honor to present herewith to the government of the United States the most sincere condolence of the imperial and royal government on the occasion of the deeply-regretted death of his excellency, the Hon. John Hay, secretary of state.
GISKRA.

Messages from South America.

Among other telegrams received at the state department was the following from the Peruvian minister:

Permit me to express to you and to the officials of the state department my heartfelt sympathy (for loss) you have sustained with the disappearance of your illustrious chief.

From the Uruguayan minister:

Since my arrival at Washington I have been indebted to the honorable John Hay, in the capacity with which I am vested, for attentions that I supremely appreciate and which I have ever endeavored to acknowledge by professions of my high and respectful affection. On this day of his demise, unexpected and sorrowful, it behooves me to present to your excellency in the name of my government and in my own, the most profound condolences for this great loss, and I beg that you may be so good as to transmit them to his excellency, the president, of whom the illustrious deceased was a prominent associate in the arduous duties of state, as well as a pure glory of the United States for the leading part he took in international questions of the greatest importance for mankind and universal civilization. Your excellency will therefore consider me a true and grieved participant in the mourning of the great American nation for the austere citizen who has been taken away from it, and whose talents and virtues I was a close admirer.
EDUARDO ACEVEDO DIAZ.

From Sweden and Norway.

From the charge of the legation of Sweden and Norway:

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your note today announcing the death of Hon. John Hay, secretary of state. I beg to express to you my deepest sympathy at the loss of such an eminent American statesman.
G. DE STRALE.

From the charge of the Nicaraguan legation:

It is with the greatest sorrow I have learned of the unexpected death of such an eminent and well known American statesman who played so brilliant a role in the political history of civilized nations during the last decade, and I earnestly desire to express to your excellency's government in the name of Minister Corea and in my own, how the government of Nicaragua joins us to lament this deplorable loss to the present administration.
N. VELOZ.

From the Netherlands' charge:

Have received with deep regret your telegram of today, announcing the death of Hon. John Hay, secretary of state. I have not failed to convey this sad intelligence to my government, and beg you to accept the assurances of my profound sympathy in this great loss the American nation has sustained.
TUYLL.

From the Haitien minister:

I have heard with sorrow of the death of Hon. John Hay. In my name and in the name of the Haitien government I beg to convey a heartfelt condolence to the people and the government of the United States.
K. N. LEGERE.

Juan Barros, son of the late president of Guatemala, cabled the profound regret of that government, and telegrams also were received from the diplomatic representatives of the Argentine republic and the consul general for Ecuador at San Francisco.

Among the messages received at the state department from American diplomats abroad, who also report communicating the announcement to the governments to which they are accredited, are the following:

Messages from Diplomats.

From Ambassador Meyer at St. Petersburg:

Greatly shocked and grieved at sad news. Count Lamsdorff called personally this afternoon and left letter expressing his deep sympathy. At proper time kindly express my sincere condolence to Mrs. Hay.
MEYER.

From Ambassador White at Rome:

Please cable me date of funeral soon as known. Propose having memorial services at the same time in the American church here.
WHITE.

From American ambassador to Brazil:

With profound regret notice of Mr. Hay's death received.
THOMPSON.

From the American minister to Morocco:

News of Secretary Hay's death received with profound sorrow.
GUMMERE.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION ON SECRETARY HAY'S DEATH

He Eulogizes Dead Statesman and Directs Half Masting of Flags on United States Legations, Embassies, Forts and Public Buildings.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 2.—President Roosevelt has prepared the formal proclamation announcing the death of John Hay, secretary of state, and it will be promulgated tomorrow in Washington. The proclamation will be forwarded by mail to all ambassadors and ministers of the United States in foreign countries, and also will be transmitted officially to the diplomatic representatives at Washington of foreign nations. Following is the full text of the announcement:

"A PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES:

"John Hay, secretary of the United States, died on July 1. His death, a crushing sorrow to his friends, is to the people of this country a national bereavement; and in addition it is a serious loss to mankind, for to him it was given to stand as a leader in the effort to better world conditions by striving to advance the cause of international peace and justice.

"He entered the public service as the trusted and intimate companion of Abraham Lincoln, and for well nigh 40 years he served his country with loyal devotion and high ability in many positions of honor and trust; and finally he crowned his life work by serving as secretary of state with such far-sightedness of the future and such loyalty to lofty ideas as to confer lasting benefits not only upon our own country, but upon all the nations of the earth.

"As a suitable expression of national mourning I direct that the diplomatic representatives of the United States in all foreign countries display the flags over their embassies and legation at half-mast for 10 days, that for a like period the flag of the United States be displayed at half-mast at all forts and military posts and at all naval stations and on all vessels of the United States.

"I further order that on the day of the funeral the executive departments in the city of Washington be closed and that on all public buildings throughout the United States the national flag be displayed at half-mast.

"Done at the city of Washington this 3d day of July, A. D. 1905, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and twenty-ninth. (Signed)
"THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
"By the President: Herbert D. Pierce, Acting Secretary of State."

IN HONOR OF HAY.

Ambassador McCormick Will Close His House July 4, but Will Make No Changes in Jones Program.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—A cablegram has been received at the state department from Ambassador McCormick at Paris, which says:

Pending instructions, and believing it to be in accordance with the wishes of the president, I have suggested no change in the functions in connection with the turning over of the remains of Admiral John Paul Jones by special Ambassador Porter to special Ambassador Loomis, on account of the lamented death of Mr. Hay. Conceiving it to be the best expression of the sentiments of Americans in Paris over our country's great loss, I have closed my house on the Fourth of July, abandoning the usual reception.

PETER HERMES' AUTO IS VICTIM OF CARRIAGE

All Precedent Is Shattered and So Is the Machine of the Councilman-Chaffeur.

Councilman Peter Hermes' enthusiasm as an automobilist has again led him into distinction. This time all established precedent is shattered, and the automobile became the painful victim of a carriage.

Mr. Hermes, with several friends, was sending his machine at a fair speed along the Panther Hollow road in Schenley park yesterday afternoon. Making the turn near Riverview it suddenly came upon a two-horse team, which immediately bolted. The driver of the automobile pulled sharply to the right, but the team, thoroughly frightened, turned to the left, crashing the pole of the carriage against the side of the machine. The pole was broken and the automobile badly damaged. Mr. Hermes, who was sitting on the left side of the car, was struck on the hand and sustained a painful wound.

The driver of the team, Joseph Blume of Millvale borough, was uninjured, and succeeded in quieting the horses. The automobile was so badly wrecked that it was necessary to tow it to the nearest garage.

FUNERAL WILL BE OF THE SIMPLEST NATURE

At Mrs. Hay's Desire, Public Will Not Be Permitted to View Secretary's Remains.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CLEVELAND, O., July 2.—The funeral services for the late Secretary Hay, which have been set for Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, will be held in the Wade chapel, Lakeview cemetery, and will be of the simplest character. When the train on which the remains of Secretary Hay are being carried passes through the suburb of Glenville, five miles from the city, the funeral car, and the private car in which the members of the Hay family are traveling, will be placed on a sidetrack until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when they will be brought into the city proper. While waiting at Glenville the members of the family will go to the residence of Samuel Mather, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Hay, where they will breakfast and remain until the start of the train for Cleveland.

At the depot the funeral train will be met by a committee of prominent citizens of Cleveland, including Ambrose Swasey, F. F. Prentiss, Charles W. Bingham, Gen. George A. Garretson, H. H. Hatch, James H. Hoyt, W. G. Mather, E. R. Perkins, S. A. Raymond, Henry C. Rouse and Judge Carlos N. Stone. The escort will be furnished by Troop A, of the Ohio National guard, of which Secretary Hay was a charter member, under the command of Capt. William Schofield.

The casket will be carried by four sergeants of Troop A to the funeral car, and will be driven directly to the chamber of commerce. It will be placed in the identical spot where the remains of the late Senator Hanna lay in state. In accordance with the expressed wishes of Mrs. Hay, the public will not be admitted to view the remains. A guard of four members of Troop A will be posted around the casket.

The services in the chapel, in accordance with the wishes of the family, will be private and of the simplest character. There will be little, if any, music, and no address by the officiating clergymen. The interment will also be as private as possible.

Mayor Johnson is absent from the city in attendance at the bedside of his mother, who is seriously ill. Throughout the funeral ceremonies he will be represented officially by City Solicitor Newton D. Baker.

SUPT. WALLACE WANTS ORGAN FOR THE POLICE

Suggests That the Public Safety Department Start a Daily Newspaper.

Police Superintendent Wallace is advocating the establishment of a daily newspaper by the public safety department to give the news of arrests and crimes committed as well as the routine business of the department. He says city officials have no organs in which they can publish their side of differences that arise between them and the city dailies.

Several police departments in the country publish a four-page daily. It is more of a bulletin than a newspaper. An edition of this description is published by the Chicago police department. Each day a copy is sent to all the police departments in the country. It often contains pictures of criminals wanted by the police there. A publication of this sort could be edited and printed at very little cost to the city, and Superintendent Wallace believes it would soon become indispensable.

"Newspapers condemn and criticise the methods of police departments," said Wallace last night, "but they don't suggest any improvement on them. When burglars give the city a tearing up the papers criticise the detectives and police. The columns of the dailies are not always open to the officials to make an explanation. Now if the department edited a small daily, officials could give their side of the trouble.

"A large majority of the police arrests never get in the news columns. The stories are measured according to their news value in local dailies. Many arrests and convictions never reach the public. The local papers are sent over the country, but the police departments of other cities receive no benefit from the brief accounts of the arrests."

There would be no charge for the paper. According to Superintendent Wallace's idea the cost of the printing would have to be shouldered by the city.

BODY IS IDENTIFIED.

Victim of Drowning Is John H. Davis of New Kensington.

The body of John H. Davis, aged 53, a stationary engineer of New Kensington, which was found floating in the Ohio river at Brunots island last Thursday, was identified at the morgue yesterday by Walter Gass of New Kensington and Mrs. Sophie Comfort of 3000 Grant boulevard, a sister of the dead man.

Davis, who had been married four times, has a widow and several children living in Pittsburgh, but had been separated from them for some time. He was out of employment and Gass says he told him last Tuesday that he would not live until the Fourth of July.

Sleepers Have Pockets Picked.

Andrew Zramba and William Wallace of Brownsville avenue, South Side, had their pockets picked while they were sleeping on the hillside near the Castle Shannon incline plane yesterday afternoon. They told Policeman Charles Ohlinger and he arrested Casper Mortzel, who was near the men, on a charge of being a suspicious person.

BELLS TOLL FOR FUNERAL TRAIN

Deep Sorrow Is Manifest as Mr. Hay's Remains Are Carried Through New England.

SILENT CROWD SHOWS GRIEF

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

ON BOARD HAY FUNERAL TRAIN, SPRINGFIELD, MASS., July 2.—The special train bearing the remains of the late Secretary of State John Hay and members of the family en route to Cleveland for the funeral reached here at 3:15 p. m. The two cars carrying the body and Mrs. Hay's party were attached to the regular Boston-Cleveland express and left at 4:31 for Cleveland.

At Northampton the public bells were tolled as the train passed, and flags were at half-mast in most of the towns.

The train had no drapery or flags to mark it from any other, and at many places it did not seem to be known that it was bearing the remains of the statesman for whom the nation mourns. At Springfield, while the train was sidetracked to wait for the arrival of the express for Cleveland, no one seemed to recognize it. Wherever the train was recognized, however, people showed the greatest respect, men baring their heads in the rain until the train passed.

The largest crowd of the day gathered at Mt. Harmon, where the summer students' conference is in progress at the Moody school. About 100 persons, including many women, were assembled on the platform, and as the train passed without stopping, all stood in respectful silence, the men with uncovered heads.

Mrs. Hay was deeply touched at the manifestations of public sorrow.

MRS. ELLA O'BRIEN PAYS DEARLY FOR HER BACK TALK

Accused of being impudent, Mrs. Ella O'Brien was fined $50, with the alternative of 30 days to the workhouse, by Magistrate Moke yesterday. Mrs. O'Brien had her husband arrested on Saturday. Later she went to the Central station and demanded that O'Brien be released. She was told that her husband would be held until after the hearing, which had been fixed for tomorrow morning. Mrs. O'Brien was very frank in her remarks to Capt. McCabe and he arrested her.

Get Your Flag Today and Here.

YOU will find the patterns removed to section formerly occupied by Kodaks, immediately to left of Penn Avenue entrance to West Store. As heretofore, the very latest McCall Patterns, as well as McCall's Fashion Magazine, will be on sale here.

THE Kodaks have been removed into East Store, occupying the space formerly occupied by Handkerchiefs. Just as handy as the old location. Please to remember that we sell none but Eastman's Kodaks, that we have all kodak requisites.

WOMEN'S and children's Handkerchiefs now occupy the section at head of aisle No. 6 in West Store. Rather think women will like this position better than they did the old location, as it is handy to ribbons, laces and neckwear.

Russia's Desperate Plight.

Reports of the situation in the Black sea squadron while vague and meager are of an alarming character. The mutiny is spreading so that it is now doubtful whether the naval authorities have any force which can be relied upon in an effort to suppress the revolt. A feeling of relief was experienced at Odessa when the Kniaz Potemkine sailed away, but it appears that she has simply shifted her position to a Roumanian port, where her presence may possibly act as a center of revolutionary disturbance. The Georgi Pobiedonoseitz, which is also in the hands of mutineers, remained at Odessa, but they are suing for pardon. The worst feature of the situation is that the whole Black sea squadron is now out of control, and this fact led the admiral in command to depart for Sebastopol without attempting to do anything. It is reported that at Sebastopol the desperate resolve was taken by the commanding officers to dismantle the ships and send the crews ashore. At Odessa the military authorities appear to have the local situation in hand, but conditions are so dangerous that the British consul has arranged to have five steamships remain off the port in readiness to remove foreign subjects.

The dispatches show that an appalling state of affairs confronts the Russian government. Naval control of the Black sea has been lost. For the present the authorities appear to be helpless and must wait upon the course of events and the impulses of the revolted crews to decide their course. The paralysis of authority thus exhibited cannot fail to give an impetus to revolutionary activity elsewhere. In many respects the present situation in Russia recalls that in France before the outbreak of the revolution—weakness and irresolution on the part of the monarch, disaffection among the intelligent classes and a spirit of revolt among the masses. The one bright feature of the situation is the definite beginning of peace negotiations. President Roosevelt announces that plenipotentiaries have been appointed on both sides with power to conclude a treaty of peace, and conference upon the terms will begin at Washington as soon after the first of August as possible. There is the strongest probability now that President Roosevelt's splendid efforts in the cause of peace will be crowned with success. Peace has become a necessity with Russia so that she may address her energies to the work of internal reform. Her interests in Manchuria have sunk into insignificance in comparison with the troubles of her domestic politics. It is no longer a question of carrying on the war but of saving the state.

Faith in the Canal.

It is said that the optimism which prevailed in Washington when the building of the Panama canal by this country was first assured has given place to discouragement over the obstacles that have appeared and that predictions are made that the great work cannot be completed for a generation at least, while some are sure that the United States will experience the fate of the French companies that attempted its construction. Attention is called to the indecision concerning the canal level, the failure to check the prevalence of disease on the isthmus and its result in driving back laborers who have accepted positions in the work; also the dispute over the purchase of supplies in the open market, which is likely to result in delay when congress takes hold of it because of its political nature. In the meantime little has been done except in the work of sanitary preparation.

No doubt many people have just been forced to realize what a gigantic task the United States undertook when it took the task of completing the canal from the French company, which had made a failure of the work. The matter was carefully considered then, and it was decided that the canal offered no obstacles which American enterprise could not overcome. It had been the unsanitary features that had contributed to the failure before and this country had proved its ability to remedy them. The credit of the government was sufficient to solve the financial problems, while engineering skill had sufficiently developed to cope with that part of the work. Since this decision was made nothing has occurred which ought to discourage the supporters of the enterprise. No doubt there are selfish interests fomenting some of the criticism of our work of canal building, but that the work will go on to the end no one should seriously doubt. The reputation of the nation is at stake and although there may be gloomy periods ultimate success is certain.

Municipal Accounting.

Recently in calling attention to the new system of accounting prepared for Minneapolis by a firm of public accountants of international standing and reputation, we expressed the opinion that such a clear, detailed and comprehensive statement of the financial condition of the city could not fail to improve its credit. This opinion is now confirmed by an article in the last issue of the Commercial and Financial Chronicle, a recognized authority in regard to investment securities of all kinds. It devotes a long article to the consideration of the first financial report of Minneapolis under the new system, praising its features highly. It points out that "municipal affairs are becoming more complex with each succeeding year and this increases the need for methods of accounting which shall make it possible to get a clear insight into their finances, and which shall also portray accurately the financial condition of the municipality." The Minneapolis system accomplishes these results and in so doing at the same time it provides a check on dishonesty by disclosing actual conditions and preventing the manipulation and twisting of accounts out of their true significance. Sound accounting is the foundation of sound business, and any corporation whose accounts are kept like those of Minneapolis will inspire the confidence of investors.

Business accounting is so rare in municipal management that the Commercial and Financial Chronicle, which makes a business of compiling reports of municipal finance, declares that a balance sheet is a rare thing in a municipal report and it knows of nothing that can compare with the balance sheet now presented in the Minneapolis report. Usually municipal reports are nothing more than statements of receipts and disbursements and a report of that kind is the only one ever seen in Pittsburgh. In fact the only information obtainable about public affairs in Pittsburgh is contained in the controller's report. If any of the other departments report their transactions the reports are never printed. The situation produces the impression that the administration is too intent upon faction politics to devote proper attention to the public business and desires to seclude the details from public scrutiny. Here is an abuse which underlies all other abuses and to the correction of this public opinion should address its efforts. No better investment could be made than to employ expert ability to prepare and introduce such a system as that adopted in Minneapolis.

Oil Production.

Advance sheets of the report of oil production in 1904 show that the increase which has been going on for so many years still keeps up, the gain over the preceding year being almost seven hundred million gallons. This enormous increase is due to the great output of the new western fields, California taking the lead with almost seven times the production of Kansas, although the latter state has been characteristically active in claiming the public attention to the state of this industry. Although Pennsylvania production is less than in previous years it is still large and it ranks highest in general value. The most valuable oil is produced in Wyoming, a lubricating oil worth $7 a barrel or $3 a barrel more than the Franklin oil, which is the most valuable quality produced in Pennsylvania, but the Wyoming output was less than a fourth of the Franklin production. California with the largest production ranks lowest in value and Texas oil is not much better. In Kansas, where complaint has been loudest as regards prices, the oil is rated as being worth over 96 cents a barrel as against 36 cents in Texas and Louisiana. The petroleum resources of the United States seem practically illimitable, and while in theory there must be a definite limit to the quantity available just as in the case of the coal measures, yet discovery of new fields so far outruns depletion of old ones that to present view there seems to be no prospect of a falling off in production, immense as the quantity has become. The value of the production last year is computed at over $100,000,000, a vast annual addition to the wealth of the country from a natural product.

China's Demand.

The Chinese empire is so vast and its population so disconnected as well as divided socially that it is difficult to learn what the national opinion is concerning our policy of excluding the coolies. The Chinese minister at Washington has sought modifications of the law and his predecessor was very active in his effort to secure a more liberal provision when it was last enacted. On the other hand, Charles Denby, former minister to China, and now advisor to the viceroy of North China, expresses the belief that if we should repeal the exclusion act China would pass a law to prohibit her coolies from coming to this country, so overwhelming is the sentiment there in favor of preventing an exodus to our shores.

The Chinese government is profiting just now by sending laborers to South Africa, for whom it receives a remuneration. This labor export has done much to satisfy the desire of the Chinaman to leave his native country in order to earn better wages, and it is said that there is difficulty in finding enough emigrants to supply the demand. This condition of affairs is facilitating the efforts of our government to appease the resentment expressed in the energetic movement of the Chinese guilds to boycott American goods. Their demand is not that coolies shall be admitted, but that merchants, students and travelers shall not be subject to the present treatment they experience. Those classes are not excluded by our laws, but it is so easy for laborers to obtain certificates that they are merchants or students, that stringent regulations have been necessary to prevent fraud. If the coolies are no longer pressing this way the regulations may be safely relaxed. Owing to President Roosevelt's representations the Chinese government is exerting its influence against the boycott movement and it is not believed that it will continue to spread.

Action Taken at Last.

The protracted investigations by the government into the workings of the meat packing companies have at last culminated in the indictment of four of the companies and 22 individuals by the federal grand jury at Chicago. The indictments charge violations of the Sherman anti-trust law, and if the charges are sustained penalties of both fine and imprisonment may be incurred.

It is gratifying that a straight issue has been raised at last which will bring the sharp edge of the law to the test of actual application to the practices of the so-called packing combination. Charges that the packers have systematically violated the law are of long standing. The report of Commissioner Garfield did not yield the support to those charges which had been expected, but after an investigation covering three months the federal grand jury has at last translated the proceedings from the stage of talk to that of action. The outcome will be awaited with general interest and will be influential upon public policy.

While the principal cities have been adopting measures to restrict the use of explosives on the Fourth in recent years, the injuries that still result show that there has been an increase in the destructive as well as noise-making quality of the explosives used. But no explosive is safe, for ordinary gunpowder must be used with care. To those who are planning to give themselves up to unrestrained enthusiasm tomorrow, it might be interesting to know that about 4,000 people are maimed in this country each Fourth and that the celebrations in 1903 cost 466 lives.

The state department is likely to go without executive heads for some time, unless the president should decide to appoint a new cabinet officer soon to succeed Mr. Hay. Frank B. Loomis, the first assistant secretary, and Second Assistant Secretary Adee are both in Paris, so the burden of routine duties falls on Herbert H. D. Peirce, the third assistant secretary. But Secretary Adee is expected home soon and the approach of the vacation season makes the absence of executive officials from Washington less noticeable.

We trust the appointees to that new bureau of combustibles are all mild tempered men. If there is ever an explosion in the board there will be serious consequences.

Represented Theories of Genius.

From the New York Evening Post.

The late John Hay represented to the full both theories of genius. He had capacities so marked and versatile that everything he undertook was done with a kind of divine ease, and he had a special training so laborious and protracted that his success might be accounted for as the result of sheer application. What distinguishes him from a score of illustrious predecessors in the state department is a certain literary, or, if one will, artistic quality of his temper.

Tribute to Secretary Hay.

From the Washington Star.

Diplomat, statesman, politician, the master of a statement clear in essence and beautiful in form; a safe adviser and as safe an executive, he added triumph to triumph in office, and came to an undisputed eminence in the largest affairs. Not only American history, but the world's history, for the past eight years could not be written without a generous tribute to this superior man's acumen and character and courage. His fame therefore is sure, and cannot but be permanent.

The Stirrup Cup.

My short and happy day is done;
The long and lonely night comes on,
And at my door the pale horse stands
To carry me to unknown lands.

His whinny shrill, his pawing hoof,
Sound dreadful as a gathering storm;
And I must leave this sheltering roof
And joys of life so soft and warm.

Tender and warm the joys of life—
Good friends, the faithful and the true;
My rosy children and my wife,
So sweet to kiss, so fair to view.

So sweet to kiss, so fair to view:
The night comes on, the lights burn blue;
And at my door the pale horse stands
To bear me forth to unknown lands.

JOHN HAY.

QUIET OBSERVATIONS

By ERASMUS WILSON.

He helped to fill the air with smoke,
He tossed his hat and howled "Hurrah,"
And swore his taxes off and broke
Eighteen provisions of the law.
He shot red rockets up at night,
And burned a blister on his hand,
And whooped around with all his might
In honor of his native land.
—Sam Kiser.

Tomorrow will be the American boy's day, and he will make it a howling success as a holiday if he only has half a chance.

Don't you wish you could feel today as you used to feel on the day before the Fourth?

It may have been before the days of cannon crackers, bombs, toy pistols and lockjaw powder, but you celebrated all right, and didn't die nine days later. If you had a cannon you made it out of a piece of pipe, or cast one of lead.

You may have had a single bunch of Jackson crackers, or maybe one-half a bunch, but you had the time of your life, just the same.

After burning enough powder to get the smell of it on your clothes, you were ready to fall in behind the fife and drum and march to a convenient grove where you listened to the reading of the Declaration of Independence, followed by a spread eagle speech or two in which the speaker twisted the British lion's tail until you could almost hear the beast groan, while the American eagle was tickled until it screamed with joy and delight.

* * *

If you happened to be a country boy you had a royal good time, and you haven't forgotten it.

For days, and maybe for weeks, your bones had been aching with Fourth of July fever, and you counted the slow-going hours until relief should come with smoke and noise and red lemonade.

And how you watched the weather signs, and asked every one you met whether it was going to rain or not. If you were fortunate enough to have a charge or two of gunpowder you would surely find some way of burning it to good advantage. If nothing better offered you would bore an auger hole in a log, or a stump, tamp the charge in it good and tight, set fire to a slow fuse and then run like a whitehead.

You wasn't foolish enough to monkey with powder, gun caps and pistols like boys of today. And don't you mind how the girls standing afar off put their fingers in their ears while your mother yelled to you to run? And when it went off some one was certain to say that it wasn't much of a crack, nohow.

That unkind remark may have hurt some, but it was a Fourth of July crack, anyhow, and that let you out.

The boys in those days seemed to think a lot more of the day than do boys now. They felt it a duty to celebrate, and they pitched in and celebrated with heart and soul. And when war came they were ready for duty, no matter how onerous.

* * *

The Fourth used to be the only real holiday of the year. Christmas and New Years were comparatively unimportant occasions, meaning nothing more than mince pie, turning the teacher out, and maybe a few cracks, or some shooting at a mark.

Even in the midst of these festivities boys would talk more or less about the next Fourth, and maybe thresh over the stories of the last Fourth. It was to all intents and purposes the red letter day of the year. And how boys would work to have things in good shape for celebrating!

Most farmers wanted to cut a few shocks of wheat on or before the Fourth just to show that they were keeping well up with the procession, if not crowding it some.

But no matter what the demands on him might be, Mr. Farmer would knock off work, hitch up his farm wagon and take his family to the celebration, picking up a few neighbors on the way. It might be five miles, or it might be nine, but that made no difference, for it was the Fourth.

The brass band may have consisted of only seven pieces, but it could play "Yankee Doodle," "Hail to the Chief" and "Washington Crossing the Delaware," scare farm horses and stir the patriotic blood up all right. And maybe some sweet girl would sing the "Star-Spangled Banner" and some bright boy recite Patrick Henry's famous speech, "Give me liberty or give me death."

* * *

Children and young folks have very different times now, and whether they enjoy themselves more now than then is a debatable question.

Then they had fewer toys, fewer holidays and fewer opportunities for seeing unusual things, but they surely did make use of the few. The few books they had to read they knew from lid to lid; the few songs they knew they could sing without the music or printed lines; and the few speeches they heard were remembered and discussed.

Today children are surfeited with toys, annoyed with dress and style, and bored with books and school fads. Young folks have so much to read that they read nothing well; they pay to be sung to instead of singing themselves; and there is so much to see and to hear that they become confused and are not much profited by it all.

Away back, say before the war, there wasn't as much drinking, swearing and gambling as now, and there were more steady-going, industrious boys and girls than now. At least the percentage of bad ones was much less than now.

Of course, this is a much faster age, so that there must be faster people, and these must live faster, and consequently die faster. And yet, it is not likely that we have struck our top speed, nor are we likely to do so for a long time; but we will strike it if we don't strike a snag; so did Greece and Rome.

As long as we manage to keep strong, honest, progressive men in the band wagon the procession is not likely to go wrong; at least not so far that it can't be brought back and started on the right road again.

The spirit and manner in which the people of any country celebrate their national holidays is one of the surest indications of their loyalty and patriotism, and these two are the mainstays of any government, for without them a nation can neither resist invasion nor quell insurrection.

Some of the old-time patriots think that the Fourth is not observed in as pure and holy spirit as in former times. These point to the fact that the day is largely given up to frivolous sports, unpatriotic picnics and to unfit doings generally.

There are some grounds for these complaints, so that they should not be allowed to pass entirely unheeded.

And then these complaints apply with much greater force to cities than to the country and country towns. And even there the tendency is to idle show rather than to an appropriate and worthy celebration of the day.

Bear in mind that tomorrow is Uncle Sam's birthday, and don't fail to observe it in some way becoming and fitting, for he is about the biggest thing on the face of the earth today.

We Lead in Divorces.

Consul Golding reports that in certain periods of time selected for investigation the number of divorces to every 10,000 marriages in New Zealand was 116.4, in South Australia 29, in Queensland 30, in West Australia and Tasmania 41, in Victoria 124.4, and in New South Wales 272.2. Canada has four divorces to every 10,000 marriages, the United Kingdom 11, Norway 16, Austria 43, Greece 50, Belgium 81, Sweden 37, Cape Colony 98, the Netherlands 103, Germany 165, France 180, Roumania 204, Switzerland 482 and the United States 612.

A Campaign Expense.

"Have you any idea," asked the confidential friend, "what the campaign is going to cost you?"

"Yes," said the candidate. "I have an idea it's going to cost me my reputation for veracity with most of the fellows to whom I have promised good jobs."—Chicago Tribune.

TALKED OF IN GOTHAM

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, July 2.—From the number of people who have left the city during the past two or three days to spend the Fourth of July at some quiet resort, one might expect New York to look like a deserted village, but there will be enough of us left to give the eagle's tail a good twist, just to hear him scream. Then the trains that come into New York are apparently as heavily loaded as those which are leaving. The comers from the country will be as noisily patriotic as those who have left, and those of us who must perforce remain in the city will have plenty of assistance in our celebration of the nation's birthday. It is estimated that fully half a million people will absent themselves from the city over the Fourth. At least a hundred extra trains have been put on by the principal railroads to meet this rush, and besides, all the steamships lying loose around the harbor have been temporarily put into commission to help meet the demand for transportation. The biggest crowds left the city on Saturday, scheming to have a three days' holiday in the country. Every railroad station and ferry house was crowded to the utmost. The incoming crowds were heaviest today, when every train entering the city carried its full quota of holiday seekers. The New York Central officials say they carried nearly 200,000 people out of the city on Saturday and Sunday, and other roads give similarly large figures in describing the exodus.

Brokers Must Stay at Home.

The decision of the board of governors of the stock exchange to be open for business on Monday is keeping a lot of men in town very much against their will. Not in many years have the governors refused to grant a special holiday when a regular holiday comes on Tuesday. But this time it was argued the brokers are business men, not school boys, and they should be attending to business on every business day. The fact that the banks will be open for business tomorrow was an added argument why the brokers should be at home, instead of hibernating in the country for two or three days. This has caused a big kick from the younger members of the exchange, who believe that business should not always come before pleasure, especially during the hot weather.

New York Great for Holidays.

There is no place in the country where people seek so carefully for an excuse to take a holiday. The business men of New York work under high pressure while they are at it, but they seem able to let go at a moment's notice and jump away from their cares, taking with them never an anxious thought about how things are going during their absence. That is the secret of one big summer colony of millionaires, which is devoid of every means of rapid communication. The telegraph and the telephone are tabooed, and should Mr. Marconi try to land his wireless apparatus in this Elysian field, he would cause a small sized riot and probably be run off the place.

Preparing for the Big Day.

All sorts of preparations are going on for the celebration of the nation's birthday. The past few days the commuters have been loaded down with packages of fireworks. The commuter is a very patriotic individual, perhaps because he likes to have a little excitement, and in the little residence places around the city about the only excitement is what they create among themselves. The Fourth of July, therefore, comes as a great day when the whole community can get noisy and do things on a big scale. The people of the city always put off buying their pinwheels and Roman candles until the big event arrives, but not so your commuter; he prepares long in advance so he can give over the whole day to the celebration.

Broadway Will Be Torn Loose.

Those people who leave New York for the Fourth of July do not know what they are missing. The great white way known as Broadway is one blaze of fire in the evening, and no such crowds are ever seen anywhere else. It is as though a whole city full of people were poured into this one great avenue, a good natured crowd of merry-makers, who push and shove among themselves in an effort to get nowhere in particular, but simply to keep moving. The police have long ago given up any idea they may have ever had of controlling this good natured mob. Red fire, and pinwheels, and tin horns are allowed to run their natural course, the police knowing full well that long e'er morning the city will again settle down to its wonted quiet. The restaurant men, too, help to celebrate, but only by being busy as they never were busy before, except on the same anniversary. It seems that people dine along Broadway on the Fourth who never visit the Rialto on any other date of the year, and that one evening at least all the restaurateurs are sure to make money.

Hospitals Have Their Innings.

But the really busy people on the Fourth are the attendants at the hospitals. The ambulance calls begin almost before the horses are awake, and they continue far into the following night. The past week, the nurses and internes have been preparing bandages to piece out the remains of the score of young hopefuls who are sure to be all shot to pieces during the celebration. No chances are taken these days of being unprepared when the great day comes. As one young doctor, who is spending his first year at Bellevue as an interne, said today: "We couldn't be better prepared if we were running a field hospital and expected to take care of all the wounded in the armies of Oyama and Linevitch."

STATE GLEANINGS

Trouble With the Telephone.

Not long since a lady on the hill took down her receiver and asked central to connect her with a friend. The connection was made, but it was far from satisfactory. The lady could not hear her friend, and there was trouble, of course, for central. The operators very courteously attempted to straighten out the difficulty, but their efforts were in vain. Finally one of them, in her desperation, suggested that possibly the lady had laid something on top of her 'phone. The lady made an examination and found that she had placed a pair of glasses at the point designated. This act had "short circuited" the line and caused all the trouble. As soon as the glasses were removed she could easily hear her friend's conversation.—Duquesne Observer.

The Dog Poisoner.

An investigation being quietly made by owners of dogs in Oil City leads to the well-founded belief that the various "mad dog" scares that have been set loose in various portions of the South Side are all due to the fact that the animals were suffering from poison and not rabies. There is scarcely a section of the city but in which several valuable dogs have been poisoned during the past few months and the sufferings of the poor brutes have been so severe that it was no wonder that spectators imagined them mad. It is a matter of fact that the dogs that have been poisoned were with few, if any exceptions, valuable hounds, birds dogs or inoffensive household pets.—Oil City Derrick.

Champion Snake Killer.

William Pyle, pumper for Miller and Ream in the Bully Hill district, has proved himself to be the champion snake killer in that neck o' the woods, having up to this date put 29 copperheads out of commission this season. M. M. Graham of the same territory has also massacred nine of the species, and one black adder in and about his boiler house on the M. B. Wright lease. Snakes are more than plenteous in that vicinity and are a menace to the lives of children, one young boy recently dying from the effects of the bite of a copperhead. It is proposed that the woods be raided and cleaned from the venomous reptiles.—Venango Citizen-Press.

Caught a Human Fish.

To have a 7-year-old boy dangling on the end of his fishing line was the peculiar sensation given to a fisherman on Codorus creek, near York, Wednesday afternoon. Oliver Klinefelter, 7 years old, was swimming at the above named place. He dived under the water and the hook got fastened to his ear. Thinking that a fish was nibbling, the fisherman pulled hard, only to find that he had caught a live youngster. Screaming with pain, young Klinefelter hurried out of the water and went to the office of a doctor, where the hook was extracted.—Bellefonte Republican.

Peaches Preserved 35 Years.

About seven years ago the Standard mentioned the fact that Mrs. Mary Fleegle of Stoystown had a jar of peaches that were put up in 1870. Mrs. Fleegle still has the fruit, which has now been in its glass case for almost 35 years, and its appearance indicates that it is in as perfect and palatable condition as the day it was sealed. The fruit is in an ordinary glass half-gallon jar, sealed with wax composed of beeswax and rosin. Mrs. Fleegle has refused several tempting offers for the fruit.—Somerset Standard.

A Retaliatory Boycott.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

As China has thrown down the gauntlet to American labor by instituting a boycott on American goods, it behooves us American laborers, mechanics, merchants, etc., to accept the challenge and refuse from now on to have a Chinese matting in our homes. What brazen effrontery for such a people to impudently flaunt a boycott threat into the face of our countrymen? Let every American refuse to have a Chinese matting on his floor from this time on. American-made carpets are good enough and cheap enough for me. SALESMAN.

A Deplorable Loss.

From the New York Tribune.

The death of Secretary Hay inflicts a deplorable loss upon the country. The instant and universal outpouring of grief bears no resemblance to the conventional expressions which are often evoked by the disappearance of a notable figure from the stage of public affairs. The American people had a profound regard for Mr. Hay, and a strong attachment. He had excited their admiration and he possessed their confidence.

PICKED UP IN LOBBIES

Sheridans Have Family Reunion.

When the passengers on the St. Louis limited alighted at Union station last night a man and a little girl, standing on the platform, were observed scanning the passengers closely. Among the latter a bearded man was directing an anxious gaze among the crowd on the platform. The little girl tugged at her father's sleeve and said: "There's Uncle Tom, papa. He looks like the picture at home." The father turned toward the anxious-looking passenger.

"Are you Tom Sheridan?" he asked.

"Yes," replied the other, "and you are P. J."

Then the two men threw their arms about each other's necks and kissed each other. The little girl first cried, and then laughed, when her uncle picked her up and kissed her.

It was the first time in 30 years that Thomas O. Sheridan, Dublin haberdasher, and his brother, P. J. Sheridan of 459 Taylor avenue, Allegheny, a Fifth avenue tea dealer, had seen each other. Thirty years ago P. J., who is nearly 50 years old, left Ireland, Thomas being only 2 years old. Since then three other brothers joined the first in this country, but Thomas remained at home. As he grew to manhood he kept up the correspondence which P. J. had been holding with their parents. Recently Thomas decided to come to America and he wrote to his brother here. Yesterday he arrived in New York and telegraphed to Pittsburgh that he would arrive last night. Another brother, Joseph, who is employed in Pittsburgh, lives at P. J.'s house, but he was not told of the expected arrival, and the two brothers were picturing Joseph's surprise when he would be confronted with the brother whom he had not seen for nearly 30 years.

Thomas will spend a few days with his two brothers here. Then he will go to Chicago to see his brother John, who does not know he is in America. From there he will go to Florence, Cal., to see his brother, Dr. William Sheridan. The doctor thinks Thomas is still in Dublin.

Likes Kittanning Hospitality.

Five hundred Knights of Columbus returned yesterday from Kittanning, where they attended the installation of a new council. They were pleased with the spirit shown by the new brethren at Kittanning and were loud in their praise of the hospitality they received.

Holiday Travel is Heavy.

Travel over railroad lines entering Pittsburgh has been very heavy since Saturday morning. Thousands left Pittsburgh either to visit their old homes or to spend a few days away from home, owing to the fact that the Fourth of July falls on Tuesday and that it was easy, by getting away from their work today, to enjoy three workless days away from town. The most money ever taken in at the ticket offices in the Union station on any previous occasion is said to have been $27,000, but on Saturday more than $32,000 was received in exchange for tickets at the Union station.

Hay's Tact and Skill.

From the New York Sun.

By the death of the secretary of state we have lost a public servant who for some seven years conducted our exterior relations with a tact and skill that gained for him the sincere respect of European diplomatists and the thorough confidence of his fellow countrymen. At a somewhat critical conjuncture of our history when many a question not only urgent but of large prospective import called for expert and farsighted treatment, he shaped his course with caution and dexterity, and planted in the popular mind the just belief that in the hands of John Hay the nation's foreign interests were safe.

Stopping the Interest.

A host of Daniel Webster, in handing him a glass of Madeira out of a dusty and cobwebbed bottle, said that he had made a little calculation that the wine had cost him $2 a glass, counting the interest from the time he bought the wine. Webster reached for the bottle and helped himself to a second glass, saying, "I really must stop that confounded interest."—Philadelphia Ledger.

SOUTH FORMING A VOTING TRUST

Republican Leaders Will Combine to Control National Convention.

WILL DEMAND RECOGNITION

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU
Room 10, Postal Building,
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2.

Information has reached the headquarters of the Republican national committee in this city that an attempt is being made to form a voting trust among a number of southern states to operate in the next Republican national convention. The scheme is not in the interest of any particular candidate, but for the purpose of securing to this section the recognition after the election that would be due for swinging a large number of votes into line for the successful candidate.

The plan as outlined to members of the national committee is to negotiate an understanding among the Republican leaders of the southern states by which their delegations will be sent to the convention uninstructed. The leader from each state is to be permitted to cast the vote of the delegation as he sees fit. A few days before the convention these leaders are to caucus in the convention city, canvass the situation and decide upon whom they shall concentrate their strength. This question decided the leaders will go into the convention and cast the votes as agreed.

Plan Has Been Uncovered.

Scouts acting in the interest of the Fairbanks presidential boom have uncovered the plan in Alabama and they have reason to believe that it is being projected quite generally through the south. Col. Cecil A. Lyon, member of the Republican national committee from Texas, is one of the prime movers in the deal and he is acting with the leaders of other southern states. Heretofore there has been a general scramble among the various candidates for the southern delegations and these votes have been picked up here and there by the promise of small places in the federal service and by other means. If the scheme for the voting trust goes through it may be possible for the managers to deliver from 200 to 250 votes in a bunch and the influence of New York, with its 78 votes, will be reduced very materially. In return for the delivery of this large number of votes the south can reasonably expect from the nominee at least one cabinet place, one ambassadorship and a large number of federal appointments, general in character, and which that section of the country could not hope to obtain if the states acted independently in the convention. It would be the application of modern trust methods to practical politics and the benefits that would accrue are obvious.

Former Attempts Failed.

This is not the first time that this idea has been broached. It was first suggested in 1900 and another attempt was made last year to work it. In both instances it was defeated by all opposition to the successful candidates disappearing before the convention met. Last year when there was a good deal of talk of Senator Hanna as a presidential candidate, the scheme was proposed in the west and it was gaining good headway when the senator died, leaving a clear field to Roosevelt.

In that case George W. Knight of California was one of the prime movers and the small western states seemed very willing to go into a trust as proposed. Alone, with but a few votes in the convention, they were of practically no influence and they could hope for no reward worth mentioning in return for their support. But it was proposed to unite the strength of California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming, controlling a total of 94 votes, which would make them a factor to be reckoned with. Negotiations were opened with the state leaders on the subject and it is said that the Dakotas were both pledged to the scheme. Then came the death of Senator Hanna and it was necessary to abandon the project. Later an attempt was made to try the plan on the vice presidential nomination, just as an experiment, but all opposition to Fairbanks vanished and this, too, was given up.

Wresting Power from the East.

Heretofore it has been the custom to look upon New York and Pennsylvania as the keys to the situation in all national conventions. Seldom has an attempt been made to nominate a candidate without the support of one or both of these two large delegations. But if voting trusts are successfully organized it will be seen that the influence of New York and Pennsylvania will be more than offset by the combinations that will vote as a unit. As a general proposition, both in the south and west, the states have nothing to lose and everything to gain. This is especially true in the southern part of the country where the faithful Republican workers are obliged to rest content with the smaller local federal offices as their share of the spoils. But under the proposed plan they will have visions of cabinet portfolios and ambassadorships held up before their gaze, making an alluring bait that may induce them to throw their influence with the voting trust.

Girl Is Shot in the Shoulder.

Nick Hanig, a Croat of 459 East Ohio street, Allegheny, is under arrest, pending an investigation into the shooting of 16-year-old Mary Droboding, with whose father Hanig boards. The shooting occurred in the kitchen Saturday night and the bullet penetrated the girl's shoulder, inflicting an ugly but not necessarily fatal wound. Hanig says the shooting occurred accidentally while he was cleaning his revolver.

Are Chosen Resident Physicians.

Notifications will be sent out today from the McKeesport hospital to the four new resident physicians who will take charge of the wards in that institution next August. ITALIAN WARSHIP VISITS THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The Italian cruiser Dogali, which has been at anchor in the lower Potomac river for several days, came into Washington harbor today and anchored before the army war college, near the navy yard. The cruiser, having been officially visited by the Italian ambasador and the members of the embassy, the ship was thrown open to the Washington public. Hundreds of citizens availed themselves of the privilege of visiting the Dogali. The Dogali will remain here until Wednesday, when she goes to New York for a brief stay.

The Dogali has had a long and eventful voyage, having been absent from Italy for 14 months, during which time she has sailed about 25,000 miles. The most notable part of her voyage was a trip through the Amazon, on which her officers claim that she ascended the river farther than any other war vessel has ever been. Her officers state that the Dogali went over 2,300 miles, reaching the middle of Peru, 100 miles farther than the farthest point reached by the United States gunboat Wilmington.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—(Special.)—Shortly after the Brazilian cruiser "Benjamin Constant," anchored off Callowhill street yesterday, a big jovial son of Erin, attracted by the crowd watching the ship from the wharf, inquired concerning the nationality of the vessel. A bystander jokingly informed him it was an Irish battleship.

"Well, by St. Patrick," he exclaimed, "it must be the battleship 'Hybernia' that I read was goin' to be launched some time ago. Shure there's the flag of ould Ireland."

The green and gold banner of Brazil was floating defiantly in the breeze. In his excitement, the Irishman ran to the edge of the pier and waving his hat in the air, shouted:

"Hurrah for ould Ireland. Erin-go-Bragh. Hurrah! Hurrah! Hur——"

Just then his foot caught in a coil of rope and he tumbled into the water. Jasper Williams and Henry Johnson, longshoremen, hauled him out with a boathook and brought him aboard a tug to dry out.

SCHOOL BOARD CANNOT AGREE

Twenty-Seventh Ward Directors in a Deadlock on Three Propositions.

Three Citizens and three Democrats comprise the membership of the Twenty-seventh ward school board. On the election of a principal and a representative on the central board of education and the approval of the treasurer's bond they are in a deadlock. Another effort is to be made to get together this evening.

The Democrats and the Citizens of the ward have not been fusionists. A working agreement was made for the organization of the board, but it was broken before the deal was carried out. It is now difficult to tell how the matter will be settled. The real differences are over the approval of the bond of Dr. J. E. Gould as treasurer and the re-election of J. E. Roth, a Republican, to the central board of education. If Gould will turn in for Roth, the bond will be approved, otherwise the fight may go on until after the next municipal election, when the voters may make some changes. It is probable the principalship will be settled.

It is necessary to elect a principal, as Prof. J. K. Bane, who has presided over the schools for 37 years, has retired. There is much discussion over the reason for his retirement, but it is a matter with which the school board has nothing to do.

Why Bane Retired.

Three years ago Prof. Bane announced he would not be a candidate for re-election. Some time ago he addressed a letter to the board informing the directors he had not altered his decision. It is believed, however, he would have asked for another year in order to round out a half century of teaching, had not a thing happened which caused him to retire.

In a letter addressed to the school board Prof. Bane relates an experience he claims to have had early this year. According to the principal, a politician in the ward, who is not a member of the school board, suggested it would be necessary for him to pay a sum greater than $200 to secure his re-election. It was after this proposition had been made Prof. Bane finally announced he would not seek a re-election. As the man mentioned in the letter is not a director, the board decided it had no power to make an investigation.

Prof. Bane's name has not been before the board as a candidate. The three Democrats have voted for Joseph McDermott, principal of the Knox school, and the Citizens have supported W. S. Bryan of Carnegie. It is the opinion in the ward there will have to be a new candidate brought forward in order to break the deadlock. When the annual picnic was held at Southern park last week the school children wore badges, pinned on with Bane buttons. The buttons were purchased with the unanimous approval of the board. The salary of the principal is $2,200 per annum.

Say Agreement Was Broken.

The Democratic members of the board are Frank M. Caldwell, John A. Carson and Joseph Huber. The Citizens are Dr. J. E. Gould, a city physician; Edmond Bishop, a policeman, and Frederick Koch, a painter in the employ of the city. When the date for the organization of the board came early in June, Dr. Gould and the Democrats are credited with having entered into a deal. The Democrats say it was agreed Gould was to be elected treasurer, Caldwell president, Huber secretary and Roth re-elected a member of the central board. The bargain was carried out until it came to the election of Roth. The Citizens have refused to go into an election. Roth's term does not expire until the end of this year.

The treasurership pays $400 a year, but the official does not come in for the salary until the bond is approved. In the interim the old treasurer, who in this case is Huber, holds over. It requires four votes to approve a bond and the same number to elect a member of the central board. The Democrats say it is either up to Gould to go over to Roth or the deadlock will continue. Gould is said to be figuring on the possibility of waiting until next February in the hope a change in the board will occur to his benefit.

Lay Church Corner Stone.

The corner stone of the First African Methodist Episcopal church of Clairton was laid yesterday afternoon, the ceremony being conducted by the Rev. Samuel T. Jackson of Pittsburgh. The negro Knights of Pythias of McKeesport, accompanied by a band, went to Clairton and took part in the parade that preceded the corner stone laying. The new church will cost $8,000. The Rev. Daniel Newsome is pastor.

Thomas G. Sample Improving.

Thomas G. Sample, who has been seriously ill at the family residence, 1532 Fremont street, Allegheny, was reported to be much improved last night. During the day an operation was performed that relieved Mr. Sample of much of the suffering he has endured for a week past. He was resting easily last night and the attending physicians are more hopeful than they have been for some time.

Church Services on a Lawn.

The evening services of the Mifflin Avenue Methodist Episcopal church of Wilkinsburg was held on the church lawn last night. It was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Charles Smith. The lawn services will be continued during the summer months on Sunday evenings. The church organ was placed on the lawn and the regular choir sang.

LARKIN NO MORE WITH ORPHANS

STEVENSON CAUSES A STIR

Director Bigelow makes the declaration that Controller Larkin is no longer identified with the Orphans party, but is bound up wholly with the Citizens organization. To a number of people Director Bigelow was discussing the Orphans and made the remark:

"Larkin does not belong to the Orphans any more."

"Why don't he belong to the Orphans, director?"

"Because he is elected," was Director Bigelow's immediate reply, and it "brought down the house."

This remark was carried to the controller and he did not receive it very graciously. He refused, however, to say anything for publication. His support is ardently counted upon for the entire Citizens ticket this fall. The controller says a great many things privately, but carefully refrains from criticising the administration for publication.

The hot "roast" given the city administration yesterday by former Councilman W. H. Stevenson, the political ally of Mr. Larkin when the controller was a leader in the Orphans party, caused the latter to announce yesterday that he would try to do something with the administration to get it to mend its ways. Mr. Stevenson declared that the alleged efforts of the administration to collect old debts from corporations was "pure buncombe," and he severely criticised the city officials for refusing to collect the tax on switch licenses, authorized under an ordinance passed by councils in 1903, when Mr. Stevenson introduced and fathered the measure. Mr. Stevenson ridiculed the idea that a verbal opinion should be accepted from the city solicitor that the switch ordinance is illegal and that no attempt should be made to test the law.

Controller Larkin said yesterday he would see the city solicitor in a few days and endeavor either to get him to change his legal opinion about the ordinance or to prepare a new ordinance which would be legal. The controller, however, did not indorse Mr. Stevenson's proposition that the law should be tested before being declared invalid. He thought that he might persuade the city administration to view the matter in a different light.

The controller's own official statement yesterday of the revenues of the city for the first four months of the present fiscal year, compared with the revenues for the same period of last year, emphasized the force of Mr. Stevenson's criticism. The controller's statement showed that the fees from switch licenses had fallen from $2,393 to $75 in four months. This was due to the fact that the administration repudiated the ordinance which was passed as a reform measure in October, 1903, on the eve of an election, and also failed to make any collections on switches under the old law.

PRESIDENT ATTENDS CHURCH.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt Hear Sermon on Neighborly Love and Corrupt Politics.

OYSTER BAY, July 2.—(Special.)—The president drove through the rain this morning to Christ church with Mrs. Roosevelt and Archie. The Rev. Homer H. Washburn preached on the text, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Selfishness, he said, had caused the corruption of politics and the ruin of nations. During the prayers the pastor touched upon the bereavement in the family of the late secretary of state.

Mr. Roosevelt spent the afternoon quietly at home with his family.

Go Boating, Land In Prison.

The pleasant weather yesterday prompted Gable Rodgers and John Scullen, aged 14 and 15, respectively, to indulge in a skiff ride. Not possessing a boat of their own, they untied a skiff belonging to one of the steamboats and proceeded to enjoy a pleasant outing. Upon their return they were arrested at Second avenue and Bates street by Special Officer Harry Wilson upon complaint of the owner of the boat, and were locked up at No. 10 police station as suspicious persons.

COUNCILS RACING WITH THE COURT

Passage of the Second Avenue Repealer Will Nullify Judge McClung's Order.

BIGELOW IS MAKING HASTE

The Pittsburgh councils are running a race with the Allegheny county court. Judge McClung on Saturday issued an order directing the city board of viewers to present within 30 days their report on the widening of Second avenue from Try street, at the Panhandle railroad, to Cross street at the South Tenth street bridge.

The viewers had assessed benefits and damages for the widening of Second avenue under an ordinance passed in 1896, but the report had not been presented to court because of the opposition of Director Bigelow to the improvement under the lines laid down in the ordinance and because of the heavy benefits assessed by the viewers against the city. The city was assessed $107,000 and the property owners only $38,000 to pay for the widening.

To prevent the assessment made by the viewers being carried into effect and the widening made upon the plans provided in the ordinance, Director Bigelow had a repealing ordinance recently introduced in councils to anticipate any such action as was taken in court on Saturday, when a couple of interested property owners secured the order for a report from the viewers within 30 days.

The repealer has already passed common council, and since the order of the court on Saturday Director Bigelow is arranging to rush the repealer through select council with all possible haste and have it signed by the mayor immediately.

Assistant City Solicitor John A. Blair said yesterday the passage of the repealing ordinance would have the effect of nullifying the order of the court. If the repealer is passed within 30 days from Saturday the viewers will not have to make their report. On the other hand, if select council fails to take final action on the ordinance before the 30 days have expired, the order of the court will stand. As the matter now stands Director Bigelow appears to have the best of the situation unless the property owners go to court again and have the time shortened in which the viewers are to make their report.

Director Bigelow claims that if the ordinance of 1896 for the widening of Second avenue is allowed to stand, Second avenue will not have a uniform width of 70 feet, as planned, but that there will be an ugly set-off of 10 feet at Gas alley, in front of the packing establishment of Rea & Co.

The ordinance provided that the 30 feet should be taken off the north side of Second avenue from Try street to Gas alley. Second avenue is now 40 feet wide at that point. The mistake is said to be that the ordinance did not specify that the 30-foot cut should extend across Gas alley to the east side instead of stopping at the west side of the alley, because the failure to extend the cut of 30 feet across the alley leaves an off-set at that point. The ordinance provides for a cut of only 20 feet from Gas alley to Cross street because Second avenue is 50 feet wide between those two points.

HOLD UNION SERVICE.

Six Allegheny Congregations Gather in One Church.

Six United Presbyterian congregations of Allegheny united in service in the Fifth church, Irwin avenue, last night. The Rev. J. A. Henderson, D. D., of the Third church, delivered the sermon.

The congregations uniting were the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Ninth. Union services will be continued each Sunday evening throughout July and August, and will be held in each of the churches in rotation.

OFFICIAL—ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

Office of Controller of Allegheny County,
Pittsburgh, Pa., June 17, 1905.

NOTICE is hereby given that the commissioners of Allegheny county, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, will receive until 12 o'clock, noon, Thursday, July 6, 1905, sealed proposals for the permanent improvement of certain public roads or highways in said county, known as the Lowry's Run and Mt. Nebo road, Noblestown road extension No. 2, Elizabeth and Monongahela City road, Versailles road, Monongahela City and Elizabeth road, via Lock No. 2, and Three Degree and Gibsonia road, according to the surveys, plans, profiles and estimates on file in the office of the county road engineer. The said surveys, plans, profiles and estimates, together with a copy of the contract, specifications and bond to be entered into by the party or parties to whom the contract may be awarded, are on file in the office of F. W. Patterson, county road engineer, room No. 19, court house, Pittsburgh, Pa., and are open for the inspection and examination of all persons interested. The proposals or bids for said proposed improvements must be filed in the office of the county controller, court house, Pittsburgh, and addressed to the county commissioners. The contracts will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders in compliance with the provisions of an act of Assembly, approved the 26th day of June, 1895, entitled, "An act providing for the permanent improvement of certain public roads and highways," etc.

Each proposal must be accompanied by bond with two sureties probated before said commissioners, or before some person having authority to administer oaths, or the bond of a security trust company authorized to do business in the county of Allegheny, in the sum of twenty thousand ($20,000.00) dollars. Bids must be submitted for each road separately.

The commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

R. J. CUNNINGHAM,
County Controller.

VETERAN CORPS INVITED TO CAMP

Duquesne Greys May Accompany Eighteenth Regiment to Erie Encampment.

CAPT. HENDERSON RETURNS

The members of the Veteran corps, Duquesne Greys, have been invited to hold an encampment with the Eighteenth regiment at the Second brigade, National Guard of Pennsylvania, encampment, at Erie next week. A favorable response has been received from the majority of the old-timers and it is probable that the full strength of the corps will share camp delights with their active brothers in the regiment.

The veterans will be provided with tents and camp equipage and will have a favorable site in view of the lake front. In the corps are men who attended the earliest camps of the old command and an especial compliment has been tendered those who were conspicuous in the famous old organization. This will bring a number of the Spanish war veterans to the National Guard encampment—the first time some of them have been in uniform since the regiment came home and laid off the khaki of the volunteers.

Capt. Marshal Henderson of Company L of the Eighteenth, who resigned about a month ago and who was re-elected by his old comrades, has again taken the oath of office and will command his company at Erie. The second lieutenancy in the company, made vacant by the resignation of A. G. Underwood, has not been filled. John T. Burns remains first lieutenant. Regimental Adjutant Churchill Mehard, who resigned some time since, has reconsidered his action and will accompany the regiment to camp. Capt. Mehard is now away spending his honeymoon at the seashore, and his non-appearance at the drill on Saturday evening was declared by his brother officers to be mitigated by a sufficient excuse.

The "blue shirt" incident of Saturday evening will bring good results to the regiment. Owing to the incomplete state of the Craft Avenue armory, not all the men have individual lockers, and it is stated by several company commanders that the men were allowed to take their shirts home for the reason that it would be impossible otherwise for each man to have his own property. The uniforms of the privates and non-commissioned officers are not provided with monograms and much confusion resulted in instances where a man with a No. 16 size neck got a No. 15 shirt.

Some dissatisfaction is expressed over the sizes and the fit of the shirts. The men declare that no shirts are issued of a smaller size than No. 15, and in the cases of the smaller men the shirts are too long in the sleeves and to loose about the neck, adding inconvenience to discomfort. Worst of all, the state law does not permit alterations to be made. The officers say that agitation of the shirts will result in each company being provided with individual lockers for each soldier and all then can be assured of a respectable fitting of their garments.

ITALIAN WEDDING ENDS IN A BLAZE OF GLORY

Groom Said to Have Become Jealous of Guest and Stilettos and Revolvers Are Displayed.

An Italian wedding in "Shook's Block," near Boggs avenue and Soffel street, Mt. Washington, came to a glorious and successful conclusion last evening with an impressive demonstration of stilettos and revolvers, followed by mob and police maneuvers.

After the smoke of battle had cleared away it developed that one Tony was the proud bridegroom of the occasion and had included among the guest list Mr. and Mrs. Carl Koppel of Jerome street, McKeesport. Following a prolonged and liberal distribution of concentrated hops, it is alleged that Carl demonstrated his accord with Tony's choice in a manner which aroused the viper of jealousy in the bosom of the bridegroom.

Koppel sought a street car at this particular time and Tony and his best man are said to have followed, and the former is accused of drawing a revolver and snapping it several times while holding it to Koppel's head. It failed to explode and Tony is charged with beating Koppel over the head with the butt end.

This led to a general fight in which stilettos and revolvers figured, during which Tony was slashed across the cheek. The conductor and motorman of a street car, together with many residents of the vicinity, succeeded in parting the combatants, while a bystander sent an alarm to detective headquarters that murder had been done.

A crowd of about 500 people, together with a battalion of police from the South Side station, followed the rioters back to the house, where Koppel and two other Italians were arrested. The latter two were found in possession of stilettos nine inches long. The house in which the festivities were held is the same in which Pasquilla Rochetto was shot to death by James Gilardi last October. Gilardi is still at large.

BOY THINKS HE WALKED CLEAR AROUND THE WORLD

Instead He Circles About a Liberty Street Triangle Vainly Looking for His Lost Brother.

George Auscott, aged 8, of Kohlmeyer's lane, Mt. Washington, started out yesterday to search for his lost brother and got lost himself. When darkness came on he had reached the corner of Sixth avenue and Liberty street. His legs were tired, he was hungry and his eyelids were growing heavy. He walked up to Smithfield street and down Sixth avenue. When he reached Liberty street again he was doubly perplexed. Again he started and in a few minutes arrived back at the same spot.

"Say, mister, they say in school that the world is round, but I didn't think a little boy like me could walk around it so quick."

The lad addressed Policeman Renwick Ewart, who took him to the Central police station.

"My brother is 10 years old and has been lost since Friday," said the boy as he walked hand-in-hand with the big officer. "I started out to find him and have been out all day. I must a-walked most a million miles. I'm so hungry. Do you think anybody will give us a piece of bread-and-butter? That's bully. Do you know if its very far home? I'd forgot it is most bed-time, too. I hope the folks won't be worried 'bout me. They worried awful 'bout my brother."

The boy was placed in charge of the matron and put to bed. He soon fell asleep and today will be sent home.

The Death Roll.

Liddon Flick.

Liddon Flick, owner and editor of the Wilkesbarre Daily Times, one of the most prominent business men in the Wyoming valley, died at his home in Wilkesbarre yesterday of hemorrhage of the brain. Mr. Flick was born in Wilkesbarre October 29, 1858. He was president of the Peoples bank for the past 12 years, and was a director in many industrial, charitable and financial institutions. He is survived by his widow and one daughter three months old, three brothers and one sister. He leaves a large estate.

Mrs. Jane Crum McMillan.

Mrs. Jane Crum McMillan, aged 72, widow of Thomas McMillan, and mother of County Detective Robert L. McMillan, died yesterday at her home in Bridgeville. She was born near Carnegie and had spent her entire life in Allegheny county. Her husband was a well-known farmer, whose parents were among the earliest settlers of the Chartiers valley. Mrs. McMillan was a member of the Presbyterian church. The following children survive: William A., McDonald; Richard, Apollo; Robert L., John T., Andrew J., Wesley and Miss Jennie McMillan, Bridgeville.

NEWS OF THE NEARBY TOWNS AND COUNTRY

WEST NEWTON DEDICATES ITS NEW BAPTIST CHURCH

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WEST NEWTON, PA., July 2.—The new church building of the First Baptist church of West Newton, was dedicated today. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. John Howard Harris, D. D., president of Bucknell university of Lewisburg. The financial part of the exercises was conducted by Dr. Calvin A. Hare, also of Bucknell university.

A large platform meeting was held in the afternoon, participated in by pastors of the local churches. A fine organ, the gift of Andrew Carnegie and Mrs. Anna H. Barrymore, the mother-in-law of the pastor, the Rev. A. M. Gregg, was used for the first time. The soloists were Miss Jessie V. Ferrell of West Newton and Mr. Thomas Hughes of Waynesburg.

The church is a branch of the Salem church of this vicinity, which was organized in 1792, and is probably the oldest church of the Baptist denomination west of the Allegheny mountains. The new edifice, which was built at a cost of $25,000, is of red brick, with Cleveland free stone trimmings, the design being modernized Romanesque.

BLUE LAWS WILL NOT BE PRESSED FARTHER

IRWIN, PA., July 2.—(Special.)—Livery stables in town today were open and doing business as usual. Proprietors were notified that they must feed all horses brought in by drivers and humane society officers would defend them if action should be brought under the Sunday laws. It is stated that there will be no more prosecutions against the liverymen by H. L. Meerhoff, who caused the warrant to be issued, citizens having brought pressure to bear on him.

DIES ON HIS WAY TO THE POOR FARM

GREENSBURG, PA., July 2.—(Special.)—Christian Donnelly, 62 years old, who came here from his former home in Youngstown, Pa., early in the week and asked for lodging at the police station here, complaining of illness, received a commitment to the county home Thursday and started for that institution. Attacked by heart failure on the way, he lay down in a stable on Michael Cassiday's farm near here, and died.

WANT MORE MONEY FOR BURYING PAUPERS

GREENSBURG, PA., July 2.—(Special.)—The undertakers of Westmoreland county have effected an organization, the sole purpose of which is to secure a higher rate for the burial of paupers. At the present time they are allowed $12 by the county commissioners. This figure includes a casket and a place for burial, and was fixed by a former judge of the common pleas court. A fixed price of $25 will be insisted upon.

DOUBLE WEDDING AT THE PARSONAGE

LATROBE, PA., July 2.—(Special).—Miss Henrietta Hausser of Hostetter and William A. Klingelsmith of Latrobe, and Miss Mary E. Buckholtz of Loyalhanna and Charles H. Bookbaugh of Latrobe will be married at noon tomorrow in the parsonage of the Reformed church by the pastor, the Rev. S. B. Mase.

Sale of Coal Lands.

WASHINGTON, PA., July 2.—(Special.)—C. C. Wolfe and J. N. Montgomery of Claysville yesterday closed a deal for the purchase of 428 acres of coal in Donegal township, this county, from D. H. McPherson, for $40 an acre. The same men hold options on an adjoining block of 1,000 acres until August 1.

R. T. Lowndes Buried.

CUMBERLAND, MD., July 2.—(Special.)—The funeral of Richard Tasker Lowndes of Clarksburg, W. Va., a son of the late ex-Gov. Lloyd Lowndes, was held this afternoon at Emmanuel Episcopal church. The interment was in Rose Hill cemetery.

Murderer Dies of Wounds.

NEW TROLLEY LINE WILL SOON ENTER WASHINGTON

Purchase of the Wheeling and Elm Grove Road Means Its Speedy Connection With Pittsburgh.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WHEELING, July 2.—The report that when Hon. John A. Howard recently purchased the Wheeling & Elm Grove traction line it was for Henry Smullbach, has been confirmed by the election of Smullbach as president of the company and its virtual consolidation with the City railway of Wheeling. The Wheeling & Elm Grove line now extends to West Alexander, Pa., and will reach Washington, Pa., soon. There it will connect with Senator Flinn's line from Pittsburgh.

Howard stated recently that it is the intention to give a two-hour trolley service between the two cities, specially constructed cars to be operated and to make very few stops between the terminals. The City railway is purely a local line, competing with the Wheeling Traction Company.

In the near future it is proposed to cross the Wheeling terminal bridge into Martins Ferry and to reach Bellaire by a bridge to span the Ohio river at Benwood. The consummation of these plans would give the City company the quickest and shortest routes to the Ohio towns.

ELEVEN FARMS SOLD IN COAL LAND DEAL

WASHINGTON, PA., July 2.—(Special.)—Nearly 1,600 acres of coal land in East Finley township has just been sold to J. W. Pollock of Pittsburgh representing Waynesburg capitalists, for $50 an acre. Eleven farms are included in the sale as follows: Anderson Carroll, R. A. Marshall, James Gray, J. C. Marshall, L. H. Simpson, Henry Donley, John Donley, Mrs. John Scott, R. V. Andrew, Jesse Plant, Valentine Elliott.

Medicine Man Arrested.

ALTOONA, PA., July 2.—(Special.)—Charged with practicing medicine without a diploma, Col. J. V. Cooper, a traveling doctor, was arrested here late last night. Cooper has with him an amusement company of 10 performers, besides a brass band and has been doing a rushing business here for three weks.

Eagle Will Scream at Glassport.

GLASSPORT, PA., July 2.—(Special.)—Glassport will have the biggest time of its life tomorrow when the large Fourth of July celebration arranged by a committee of citizens will be held. The little town raised $1,200 for the affair. Burgess H. C. Griffin will take an active part in the events, and County Recorder J. Denny O'Neil is down for an oration.

Rebuilt Church Dedicated.

WEST NEWTON, PA., July 2.—(Special.)—The rebuilt St. Timothy Roman Catholic church of Smithton was dedicated today. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Joseph Dejon, pastor of the West Newton and Smithton churches. The Rev. Joseph Bauer of Pittsburgh, assisted.

Find Body in River.

FAIRMONT, W. VA., July 2.—(Special.)—The body of Thomas Gibbins, aged 65, of Johnstown, near here, was found floating in the Monongahela river this morning. He is said to have been knocked off the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks into the river.

FUSIONISTS HAVE TROUBLE IN GETTING CANDIDATES

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, PA., July 2.—The leaders of the Citizens-Democratic fusion party, recently launched here, are having trouble securing candidates to stand against the Republican organization nominees. But two candidates have so far been named—Boyd Crumrine of Washington, for additional law judge to oppose the Hon. J. F. Taylor, the Republican nominee, and P. A. Zollinger of Charleroi, for treasurer, to oppose J. C. Morgan of Canonsburg, Republican. Crumrine is a Republican and Zollinger is a Democrat.

Burgess Reese of Canonsburg, Dr. H. T. Billick, Monongahela's reform mayor, and Dr. E. E. McIlvaine of Monongahela have all been requested to stand for office, but refused. Friction has been caused by an effort to name W. A. McIlvaine of Washington the candidate for clerk of courts. McIlvaine is the present deputy clerk under Charles E. Baker, the promoter of the new party.

Opponents of McIlvaine declare that, if elected, he would simply turn the office over to Baker, who has already had two terms. It is probable that the leadership of the fusion campaign will be placed in the hands of Ralph C. McConnell, a former district attorney, and at one time a stalwart Republican. A meeting of the fusion committee will be held this week to try to fill out the ticket.

BURGLARS DO LIVELY BUSINESS IN IRWIN

IRWIN, PA., July 2.—(Special.)—Burglars early this morning entered the store of R. Block & Co. and carried away about 50 suits of clothing besides other goods, amounting in all to about $700. At about the same time Lohr's hardware store was broken into and revolvers and cutlery were taken. Two houses on the south side were entered and over $100 in cash was taken from trunks.

Walks to Chicago to Effect a Cure.

WILKESBARRE, July 2.—(Special.)—Ralph Stover of Scranton is adopting a novel treatment for an infirmity which his physician declares demands lots of outdoor exercise. Upon the advice of his physician, he is walking from Scranton to Chicago and back, taking it leisurely and trying to break no records.

Protest Against New Rates.

On Tuesday evening, July 11, a mass meeting for Royal Arcanum members from Sharpsburg, Etna, Aspinwall and Millvale will be held in the lodge room of the Etna council to take joint action and make a vigorous protest against the recent re-adjustment of rates. The grand regent of the state will be present.

Celebrate Too Early.

Frank Deil of 17 Tunnel street and John Uestit of Webster avenue were arrested charged with giving premature vent to their patriotism and incidentally with violating a city ordinance. They are accused of shooting dynamite firecrackers and were locked up in Central police station.

RIVAL TROLLEY LINES MAKE NO CONCESSIONS

Franchise War Centering at Irwin Bids Fair to Continue, With Borough Council as Third Party.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

IRWIN, PA., July 2.—The franchise war of the Pittsburgh & Westmoreland and Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Greensburg railway companies is farther from settlement than ever, and council will not recede from its position regarding compensation for rights of way in the borough. Nevertheless, each company is continuing its work outside the borough. There will be no trouble in building the lines to the borough limits, but getting through town will mean a three-cornered fight—company against company, with the council fighting for the borough's rights.

President Thomas F. Barrett of the Pittsburgh & Westmoreland Company, in a letter to council, alleged the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Greensburg Company has obstructed his company on its Irwin-Manor extension by purchasing outright property along the line so as to shut out the Pittsburgh-Westmoreland Company entirely. He asked the council to hold up the other company's franchise until the obstruction ceased. He also asked council to pass an ordinance empowering either company to use the other company's tracks in getting in and out of the borough.

Representatives of the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Greensburg Company say President Barrett's allegations are not true. They say they began taking up rights of way between Irwin and Manor nine months before the new company was heard of, and they intended the line between these points to straighten and shorten their present line as a feeder for through traffic to Pittsburgh, by way of Trafford City. As for use of each other's tracks, they declare no such arrangement could be entered into.

Croatians Resume Service.

Services were resumed in the St. Nicholas Croatian Roman Catholic church at Millvale yesterday morning for the first time in three weeks, the church having been locked up owing to the trouble between the former rector, the Rev. Father Francis Giojmaric, and the janitor of the church, Joseph Ladick. A permanent rector whose name is withheld will be installed next Sunday.

CINCINNATI, O., July 2.—Neglect on the part of Manager Clarke to chain Del Howard to first base while the Reds were at bat made the Sunday visit of the Pirates a loser. Howard is not as versatile a performer as Roger Bresnahan by quite a few, and today he needed anchoring to first base.

Now and then he took throws with his foot on the bag but most of the time he stabbed runners with the ball as they came near. At other times he was engaged in assisting the Reds to win, which they did 4 to 1, principally because of a three-error inning. Besides the misplaced Howard, Manager Clarke sprung another surprise, which Barney Dreyfuss came on to see opened. While that successful politician, Henry Peitz, whooped half-heartedly on the coaching lines, a Canadian citizen on his first visit to this country handled the well-delivered slants of Deacon Phillippe. Gibson, of London, Ontario, for the first time away from the soil of that dear Dominion of Canada, appears to be a good, lively catcher, but given to erratic throws when pressed for time.

The Reds made but five hits against Phillippe, but as the Pirates made an equal number of errors and lumped three of them in the fifth inning there was no necessity for great inside exertion. The game was chiefly interesting for the number of sacrifice dumps in one inning before anybody was out. Phillippe performed decidedly well despite the newness of the Canuck receiver. He really had it on Bob Ewing. Ewing allowed eight hits but would not have allowed a run but for Sebring's error.

CENTRAL LEAGUE IS PROSPEROUS

No Clubs Will Go Up After Tomorrow's Games—All Will Finish the Season.

YOUNG PLAYERS DOING WELL

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WHEELING, July 2.—For the first time in the history of the Central league, or of the Interstate or of the Tri-State, which were its predecessors, there are no rumors of franchise surrenders after the mid-summer holiday. The season thus far has been remarkably successful. It opened with such liberal patronage throughout the circuit that before the first of June a movement had been started for the abrogation of the rule limiting the clubs to 12 men.

Wheeling was baseball mad with an average home attendance of between 1,000 and 1,200 and upon Wheeling's motion a mail vote was taken which resulted in an almost unanimous decision to increase the limit to 13 men. This enables each club to carry four pitchers and an extra catcher and utility man. Not one of the eight clubs is behind financially. All Wheeling's receipts after July 4 will be "velvet." An average home attendance of between 400 and 500 would pay all expenses, but the attendance has averaged more than 1,000, and with less than half a dozen exceptions the Stogies have received more than the guarantee on games away from home.

The excellent attendance at Wheeling, Evansville and Ft. Wayne has financially aided some of the weaker clubs which make more money on their trips than at home. Springfield, the Central league baby, got a bad start, but under Manager Hendricks has been winning a majority of its games, with a consequent improvement in home patronage. Sporting writers throughout the circuit make the claim that no faster article of ball is being furnished by any league this summer, and while this is a pretty strong assertion for an organization with a $1,300 salary limit, it is based upon earnest, snappy exhibitions of the game.

A three-cornered fight for the leadership, which has been on for several weeks, has maintained the interest at fever heat. Wheeling, South Bend and Evansville have been so close during that period that upon several occasions the result of one day's playing has dropped a leader into third place. Grand Rapids, under the direction of John Ganzel, is also crawling slowly up on the leaders and is will be a factor in the pennant race.

There are fewer seasoned veterans in the Central league ranks this year than ever before and there is corresponding large number of colts playing their first professional ball. For this reason it is likely that the ranks of the major leagues will be recruited largely [illegible]

SCHENLEY READY FOR FOURTH

Gusky, the big elephant at Highland park, and the youngsters who visited the zoo yesterday had the time of their lives and the elephant and the "kids" enjoyed the freedom extended them to the limit. Gusky was 50 years old yesterday and in recognition of her anniversary the keepers allowed her to do pretty much as she pleased; also the children, and they did do some things which, had they happened on any other day of the year, would have fractured the hard and fast rule at the zoo.

Highland park was the drawing attraction yesterday and the great number of children who crowded in the elephant's quarters to play with her, indicated that some one had tipped them off that the big animal was to have a free day to celebrate her birth. Gusky had a banquet spread for her and it consisted of many other good things to eat besides peanuts, which the youngsters showered on her.

The banquet served by the zoo attendants consisted of one bushel of potatoes, one bushel of oats, about a dozen loaves of bread and hay and the elephant washed it all down with so many buckets of water that the people got tired counting them; but it was certain she drank enough water to put out a big fire.

Was Once With Hagenbeck.

The elephant was born in Germany and for some years was connected with Hagenbeck's, the wild animal dealer's menagerie. After the old zoo was established in Schenley park Mrs. J. M. Gusky purchased the elephant and presented her to the zoo, where for years she was the main attraction for the children. After the new zoo was built in Highland park Gusky was taken there, and has made that place her home since.

Schenley did not prove a drawing card yesterday and the crowd which stopped off at the park during the day was smaller than for many Sundays. The erection of the framework for the Fourth of July fireworks display is rapidly being completed. It is said the mayor notified the fireworks men that he will not allow them to display his picture as one of their set pieces.

Kennywood had an immense crowd of visitors yesterday afternoon and evening. The music furnished by the Rocereto band was of a high order. The big free attraction this week, the Four Lukens in their "casting act," is a show in itself. There will be a fireworks display this evening at Kennywood in which $5,000 worth of pyrotechnics will be set off.

Offer High-Class Programs.

Calhoun park's program was an exceptionally attractive one, being headed by the famous Count Andrassy Hungarian orchestra from Budapest. Assisting the orchestra were the Lone Star quartet, Andrew McLeod and Miss Madeline Burdette.

At Southern park fully 10,000 people attended the evening concert. Mayer's Braddock Library band, assisted by Duffy, Sawtelle and Duffy in a comedy sketch and Charles F. Stutzman, a monologist, furnished the entertainment. Oakwood's audiences had Dannhardt's Second Brigade band, Gavin and Platt in a refined comedy sketch and Maj. R. H. Hendershot, the original drummer boy of the Rappahannock, and his son, the world's greatest fifer, for their entertainment.

Tonight and all this week at Oakwood and Southern park theaters a high-class vaudeville performance and the cinegraph will be the attraction. At the parks tomorrow there will be dancing all afternoon and evening, games, sports and amusements. Calhoun park will have two balloon ascensions by Dare Devil Nelson, with fireworks at the night ascension. The parks will be free.

WIDOW LEAVES A GRAVE FOR A CELL IN PRISON

Police Want to Keep Her Here to Identify Her Husband's Assailants.

After attending the funeral of her husband yesterday morning, Mrs. Theophilus Jaworski was locked up to insure her appearing as a witness against the men who are believed to be responsible for Jaworski's death. Jaworski gave a party at his home, 2544 Spring alley, a week ago last Saturday. In attempting to keep out some unwelcome guests he was so badly beaten that he died.

Police Inspector Boyle had received information that Mrs. Jaworski intended to leave the city and had her shadowed. Yesterday it was reported that the woman was sick. The inspector had her taken to the West Penn hospital, but Mrs. Jaworski's friends objected so strenuously to leaving her there that the inspector ordered her locked up.

Michael Dowozodrowski and Max Sczezodrawski surrendered themselves to the police yesterday. They say they were at the scene of the fight, but neither of them struck Jaworski. They put the blame on Peter Rogalski, who was arrested several days ago.

GRAIN MOVEMENTS SHOW INCREASE

New Orleans Receives Almost Nine Times as Much This Year as Last.

COAL SHIPMENTS ARE LARGER

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2.

The movements of grain at the more prominent Atlantic and gulf ports during May of the current year, as indicated by reports received by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics, show appreciable gains, if contrasted with like movements for May of the preceding year, but a decided decline from the movement in any of the preceding months of the present year. Comparing the figures of receipts for the month of May, 1905, with those of May of the preceding year, New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore show considerable gains, while Portland shows but a small increase. On the gulf, New Orleans is represented as receiving almost nine times as much grain (wheat, corn and oats) in 1905 as in 1904.

At Boston during the month of May 888,776 bushels of grain were received, as compared with 644,159 bushels for the corresponding month in 1904. Shipments for the month were 1,530,258 bushels, a gain of over 1,200,000 bushels, compared with a like movement in 1904. This increase is due to a much heavier withdrawal of wheat, corn and oats, the increase in the outward corn movement amounting to over 1,000,000 bushels. Receipts of grain at this port during the first five months of the current year were 9,110,281 bushels. The total grain receipts for a similar period in 1904 amounted to 6,402,228 bushels.

At New York during the month of May the total inbound grain movement was 2,261,901 bushels.

At Philadelphia the total inbound grain movements during May, 1905, amounted to 874,834 bushels, being approximately 265,000 bushels greater than a similar movement in May, 1904. Shipments for the month, which were 603,152 bushels in 1905, were but 84,000 bushels in 1904, the great increase during the month of May, 1905, being in the outbound movement of both corn and oats. For the five months of the current year receipts totaled 5,902,872 bushels. The total corresponding movement in 1904 aggregated 6,600,108 bushels. The shipments from this city for the five months aggregated 3,933,749 bushels in 1905, and 4,150,578 bushels in 1904.

Baltimore's grain arrivals during May, 1905, reached a total of 831,580 bushels, and were nearly twice the corresponding arrivals in 1904. Shipments for the month were 887,756 bushels in 1905 and 315,041 bushels in 1904. During the five months ending May 31, 1905, there were received 9,294,191 bushels of grains, as against 8,269,743 bushels in 1904. The inbound grain movement at New Orleans during the month of May, 1905, amounted to 2,796,000 bushels, being almost 2,500,000 bushels in excess of a similar movement in 1904, and over 500,000 bushels greater than that of 1903. Shipments for May of the current year, which were 239,441 bushels, were 156,-[illegible] bushels in 1904 and 1,794,052 bushels in 1903.

The gain indicated for the present year, as compared with that for 1904, was almost entirely due to a much heavier inbound movement of corn, the increase in this cereal amounting to over 15,000,000 bushels. The total of grain shipments from this port during the present year to May 31 was 16,250,842 bushels, as compared with 5,640,188 bushels in 1904 and 18,106,191 in 1903.

From preliminary returns of grain exports from the United States the exports for the month of May, 1905, are given as 8,135,136 bushels. A similar movement in 1904 totaled 2,816,903 bushels. For the first five months of the current year total exports of grain aggregated 71,764,267 bushels. During the corresponding period in 1904 the total exports amounted to 36,049,840 bushels. These figures represent about 97 per cent of the total export movement.

Commercial reports indicate that the amount of cotton brought into sight from September 1, 1904, to May 31, 1905, aggregated 12,263,445 bales, as against 9,684,697 bales for a similar period in 1903-4, and 10,352,134 bales in 1902-3. Similar receipts for the month of May, 1905, which amounted to 723,997 bales, were over 500,000 bales heavier than the like movement in 1904.

The movement of anthracite coal during the month of May of the current year, which amounted to 6,005,158 tons, was larger than that of any of the first five months of this year or of the five preceding years. The movement for the first five months of 1905 amounted to 24,872,945 tons and was over 1,300,000 tons larger than the movement for a similar period in 1904, but about 1,600,000 tons less than the movement for the corresponding period in 1903.

The total runs from various petroleum wells in the pipe line territory during the month of May this year amounted to 3,970,173 barrels, as compared with 4,082,141 barrels for a like month in 1904. Other petroleum receipts by these companies during the fifth month of the current year amounted to 3,488,855 barrels, while the 1904 arrivals were 3,503,271 barrels. The grand total of the runs from wells during the first five months of 1905 aggregated 18,747,946 barrels and differed but little from similar runs in 1904. Regular deliveries during the corresponding periods amounted to 20,031,682 barrels and 15,827,537 barrels, respectively.

SCIENCE IN THE WOODS.

Four Botanical Societies Will Spend This Week in the Country About Ohio Pyle.

Four botanical societies, representing Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia and Washington, D. C., take to the woods today when the annual "botanical symposium" of the eastern states opens at Ohio Pyle, on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. This is the first time the botanical society of Western Pennsylvania, the Pittsburgh organization, has entered into field work with the eastern societies.

The meeting opens today and will continue until Saturday. Scientific work will be carried on systematically, but the social side will not be neglected. The headquarters will be at the Rainer hotel.

Thursday has been set aside as "Pittsburgh day." Some members of the society will pass the entire week in the woods, but others will go out for the one day only and as the friends of the society and others interested in botanical work are invited a large attendance is looked for on that day.

The Pittsburgh party will leave the city on Wednesday, going up on the train leaving the Baltimore & Ohio station at 1:25 p. m. This is done that they may be on the grounds to make a start on Thursday morning.

Trio to Be Investigated.

Thomas Roberts, suspected of being concerned in the robbery of money from 1208 Webster avenue, and Israel Cohen and Louis Devine, small boys, accused of stealing a pocketbook from a man in Fifth avenue Saturday night, were held over yesterday for investigation. The boys say they picked up the pocketbook where two men had been fighting.

No Shooting on Schenley Farms.

John Greer, a negro, who had purchased a revolver for the alleged purpose of shooting the engineer at the grading being done on the Schenley farms on Fifth avenue, was fined $50 or 30 days yesterday.

Nine Prisoners Taken in Raid.

Mary Hackett's house, 806 Robinson street, Allegheny, was raided early yesterday morning and the proprietress, four girls and four men arrested. Mary was fined $100, each of the girls $50 and the men were released.

WAR-TIME RELIC IS DISCOVERED

Minute Book of Pittsburgh Defense Committee Comes to Light After 42 Years.

PROPERTY OF F. B. NIMICK

The old minute book, kept by the committee entrusted with providing a fund for the defense of Pittsburgh from invasion in 1863, has just come to light, after being lost over two-score years. It has been recovered among the private papers of the late William K. Nimick, and is a valuable historical document, recalling the bloody deeds enacted at Gettysburg just 42 years ago today, and attesting in brilliant records the loyalty of the citizens of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Nimick, a prominent iron manufacturer at a period when Pittsburgh was struggling for her place in the industrial world, was secretary of the committee appointed to solicit a fund of $500,000 from the bankers and business firms of the city to provide for the payment of the troops who were to be used in repelling the threatened attack upon Western Pennsylvania by Lee's confederate army. He kept an exhaustive journal of the transactions of the committee and of the patriotic struggle made by the people when the government was powerless to offer either troops or money. Mr. Nimick died in 1875 and the book was filed away with his other papers. It was found a few weeks since by his son, F. B. Nimick, who cherishes it with numerous historical papers in his Fifth avenue home.

When Lee Started North.

In the first week of June, 1863, the government was warned that Gen. Lee contemplated an invasion of Pennsylvania. The confederate victory at Chancellorsville left him free to push his triumphant army northward. While the laurels still painted the mountains of the Shenandoah in purple hues and the rose gardens of the Cumberland were fragrant with early blooms, 75,000 men in gray marched gallantly northward. They seemed invincible and boasted that by the time cherries were ripe they would unfurl the flag of secession upon the national capitol, and that their conquering legions would penetrate to the headwaters of the Ohio.

All the available union troops were needed for the defense of Washington and Baltimore. Pittsburgh seemed in imminent danger of attack, and to provide for the defense of Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Eastern Ohio, the department of the Monongahela was established and placed in the command of Gen. W. T. H. Brooks. The new commander was doubly handicapped. He had no troops and no money, and, what was worse, the government could not supply his needs in either particular. He was instructed to raise his army around Pittsburgh and to call upon the citizens to supply him with the necessary funds to pay the troops until congress would hold another session and pass an appropriation for the emergency.

Lee's vanguard already had reached the Potomac and the people in Southern Pennsylvania heard the ominous blare of the rebel bugles. Gen. Brooks made a patriotic appeal to the people of Pittsburgh. A meeting of the wealthy residents of the town was called in the Bank of Pittsburgh to rally to his support. The balance of the story is told in Mr. Nimick's minute book. The following extracts are printed just as they were penned by him 42 years ago.

Local Patriots Rally

The meeting was organized by electing Thomas Bakewell, Esq., chairman, and William K. Nimick, secretary.

The chairman stated that the meeting was called at the instance of Gen. W. T. H. Brooks to devise means for the protection of Pittsburgh and the military district known as "the department of the Monongahela." Gen. Brooks being present stated that the government was in possession of reliable information that the rebels designed invading Pennsylvania and that Pittsburgh was in great danger and that the government had created the military department of the Monongahela, embracing Western Pennsylvania, a portion of Ohio and West Virginia, and directed him to raise sufficient force for its protection. The war department was unable to furnish him any troops, neither could the government furnish any money. It was necessary, he said, that the troops be raised within the department for its defense, and as the last congress had not anticipated such special service, no appropriation had been made for the payment of the troops so employed and in anticipation of an appropriation to be made by the next congress, it was necessary that he should have the assurance of sufficient money to pay the troops in his department. The troops should be paid every 60 days and no money would be required until August next.

The Hon. Thomas M. Howe addressed the meeting, communicating the advices received from the war department respecting the appointment of Gen. Brooks, the fears of the government with reference to Western Pennsylvania, and urging immediate action on the part of the citizens for the defense, as the danger was imminent. Mr. Howe stated that Mr. Brooks would require about $500,000—possibly more, but the impression was that $500,000 would be sufficient until congress meets and makes an appropriation for the department.

Prompt Action Is Taken.

John Harper, Esq., presented preamble and resolutions, which after discussion and amendment on motion of F. Sellers, Esq., were unanimously adopted as follows:

"Whereas, the necessities of the country have induced the president of the United States to create a new military district which has been called the department of the Monongahela, and placed it under command of Gen. W. T. H. Brooks, and

"Whereas, congress made no provision for the payment of the soldiers raised for the defense of this department, and without an immediate supply of money it will be impossible for Gen. Brooks to carry out the instructions of the secretary of war, and,

"Whereas, the secretary of war has suggested the aid and co-operation of our citizens and incorporated institutions in supplying means, therefore, in compliance with the exigency of the case,

"Resolved, That the banks and bankers of this city be requested to loan for the purpose aforesaid the sum of $500,000, to be placed on credit of the United States government on the books of the said banks and bankers to be drawn on the requisition of the proper department disbursing officer or paymaster, approved by the major general commanding the department, said loans to be guaranteed to the banks and bankers in the proportion and by individuals, firms and corporations subscribed hereto.

"Resolved, That a committee of five citizens be appointed by the chairman of this meeting to carry the foregoing resolutions into effect."

In accordance with the above resolution the chairman appointed the following committee: William K. Nimick, James Marshall, James Laughlin, Joseph Dilworth and William Thaw.

An Entry in Red Ink.

After the resolutions the next entry was written in red ink. This sort of emphasis, however, is hardly necessary to make the reader of the present day understand its import. Those were trying times and with Lee's victorious advance already on the Pennsylvania border, not a moment was to be lost in preparing for invasion. Fortifications were being thrown up on the hills around the city. Gen. Brooks worked indefatigably and every June breeze from the southland brought fresh and terrifying rumors of the coming of the dreaded rebels. Mr. Nimick's record in red follows:

"The committee canvassed the city daily for some two or three weeks and obtained the following signatures to the foregoing obligation."

Then follows nearly 100 names, every one of which is today recognized as representing prominent individuals and firms of 40 years ago. It is a splendid tribute to the patriotism of Pittsburgh. Heading the list is the name of W. J. Kountz, whose death occurred not many months ago. He subscribed $10,000. Then follow subscriptions for a similar amount offered by Laughlin & Co., William Thaw, Singer, Nimick & Co., Nimick & Co., Park Bros. & Co., Zug & Painter, Everson, Preston & Co., Hostetter & Smith, James Benney, Sr., Lyon Shorb & Co., Joshua Rhodes, Joseph Woodwell, Logan & Gregg, Graff, Bennett & Co., J. H. Shoenberger, McKnight & Co., C. H. Hussey & Co., and scores of others. All the names are familiar among those of Pittsburgh's first families, but few of the firms survive in the style set down on the old record.

The subscriptions amounted to $327,500. The Citizens bank offered without guarantee 20 per cent of the loan, or $10,000. The Mechanics offered "$10,000 or more if required." The following banks offered $10,000: Bank of Pittsburgh, Iron City, Pittsburgh Trust Company, Exchange, Merchants and Manufacturers and the Allegheny bank. The Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Railway Company subscribed a percentage of its capital stock equal to any other public institution.

An Ominous Pause.

By the first of July the fund was ready for defraying the expenses of Gen. Brooks' army. War excitement in Pittsburgh was at fever heat. The fortifications were ready and Pittsburgh stood ready to defy the invaders. The southern counties of the state were overrun by men in gray and there were those who feared that the stars and bars of the confederacy would soon fling its hated shadow across the battlements of Pittsburgh.

The streets of the city resounded with the stirring music of the fife and drum, Old Glory waved everywhere and the hills re-echoed the call to arms. Then came the news of the collision of Meade and Lee at Gettysburg. For three days the defenders at home were held in awful suspense. Everybody realized that the crisis in the war was at hand. Then on July 3, 1863, just 42 years ago today, Pickett failed, and when the sun sank in the battle clouds behind Seminary Ridge the best of Lee's veterans, the flower of the invading host, lay in gory heaps on the memorable field.

And on Fourth of July morning when that sun rose again the confederacy was crushed. The remainder of the story of Pittsburgh's preparations for the siege which was averted by the victory at Gettysburg is told in Mr. Nimick's minute book as follows:

A meeting of the contributors and guarantors for the payment of the department troops for service in the department of the Monongahela will be held in the Bank of Pittsburgh on Thursday, the 29th inst., at 5 o'clock p. m.

THOMAS BAKEWELL, Chairman.

The department of the Monongahela subsequently was abolished, the fortifications were abandoned, the fund was not needed and Mr. Nimick packed the minute book away with other of his forgotten papers where it remained undisturbed until a few weeks ago.

SCORES ATTACK ON ROCKEFELLER

OPPOSES WAR ON TRUSTS

Under the sermon title of "Independence," the Rev. Dr. E. R. Donehoo, pastor of the West End Presbyterian church, yesterday morning scored magazine writers who have been attacking the character of John D. Rockefeller, decried the efforts of writers who are "running wild in search after scandals about trusts," and flayed those who would pronounce themselves independents in politics. He took for his text, Isaiah lviii: 6, "Is not this the fact that I have chosen? To loose the bands of wickedness, to undue the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?" and said in part:

As our national anniversary approaches, thoughts of freedom, liberty and independence engage us. What is independence, and what does it stand for? The word is not in the English Bible, though its spirit runs all through it. It has been defined to be: "Freedom from dependence upon others for guidance, government, or financial support. Self-reliance, freedom from subordination to others." Nobody likes to be dependent on others for support. Many a wife would rather starve than ask her husband for money, while there are men who boast of their independence, and who hold their heads high in the community, who compel their wives to beg for every penny that they dole out to them. Such men imagine themselves independent, when in fact, they are only demonstrating their meanness and selfishness.

False Independence.

Some look upon it as independent to scorn everything that appears like a favor offered them by a fellow mortal. They think it proper to snub all who attempt to do them a kindness, or extend to them a courtesy. Says Louisa Alcott in "Little Women," "You can go through the world with your elbows out and your nose in the air, and call it independence, if you like. That's not my way." Whenever you see such an exhibition put it down as a fact that the one who makes the display, in addition to being independent, is a degenerate.

Much is said about independents in politics and religion. One is as much a nuisance as the other, and neither is of any use either to the church or the state. When an independent in politics gets his own way temporarily he proceeds to demonstrate that his aims and ambitions are sordid and selfish in the extreme. And when an independent in religion manages to get up a church of his own he succeeds, before he gets through with it, in throttling everything that savors of real independence in thought and opinion.

In these days of free libraries an unnatural demand is created for books, which demand writers and publishers are deliriously striving to meet. To satisfy this morbid appetite for scandal, for such it really is at the best, our monthly magazines are running wild in the search after scandals about trusts and their promoters, fancying that they are displaying the spirit of independent journalism and secure in the thought that they will not be prosecuted, or castigated as they richly deserve, for so doing. We have a specimen of this style of literature in the current number of McClure's Magazine, in the attack of a woman who has become conspicuous in certain lines, upon the personal character of John D. Rockefeller.

Rockefeller Attack Cowardly.

Now I am not an admirer of this man, much less of his methods for acquiring a fortune. No doubt he has done many reprehensible things in the attaining of his purpose. But after all, say what you will of this man, he has only succeeded in doing what thousands of business men have been attempting for years without success. Conceding every charge to be true that she makes against this man, yet I regard his offense as trivial in comparison with the cowardly deed of this writer in dragging his aged father into the controversy when he had nothing whatever to do with it. What good purpose is to be served by showing the misdeeds of that old man, and the cruel suspicions which were entertained about him, but which nobody ever attempted to verify, I cannot imagine. Why was it necessary, in order to make a readable article, to drag into publicity the character and conduct of this aged father, unless it was to degrade and humiliate the son, when no other way was possible. Shame on a woman that could be guilty of such a pusillanimous deed as that, and a thousand shames on the publishers of the scandalous stuff. Call that independent journalism if you will. I call it demonish. Why not let that old man die in peace in his distant home? If that kind of journalism is to prevail then nobody is safe, unless it be the Lawsons and Tarbells, who have nothing to lose.

TO ORGANIZE CHURCH.

Methodist Episcopalcans of West View Organize and Will Seek Site for Proposed Building.

Following a similar meeting held two weeks ago, the Methodists of West View met at the home of J. W. Beers yesterday afternoon and organized a temporary association with a view to establishing a congregation and securing a church site.

The organization was effected after the Rev. Richard B. Cuthbert of the North End Methodist Episcopal church, Allegheny, had preached a sermon. Benjamin Catley was elected president, William Gallagher secretary and A. C. Rightor treasurer. About 20 families are represented in the association.

Committees were appointed to secure options upon a site upon which it is contemplated to erect a mission building, and subscriptions to this end have already been received. Until a site and building are secured, Sunday afternoon services will be conducted in a tent with the Rev. Mr. Cuthbert presiding, and upon the establishment of the mission it will, for a time, be under direction of the North End church.

Ministerial Union to Meet.

The last quarterly meeting of the Ministerial union has been called in the parlors of the Central Y. M. C. A. building, Seventh street, on Monday morning, July 3. The executive committee, of which the Rev. Dr. J. A. Duff is chairman, will present a composite program on exceptional phases of Christian work.

PREACH PATRIOTIC SERMONS.

Many Pastors Make Reference to Anniversary of Nation.

The early approach of Independence day was noted in churches of all denominations in the two cities yesterday from the pulpit. In scarcely a church did the coming of the day go unnoticed, while in almost every instance the sermons were either devoted entirely to a discussion of the birth of the nation or reference made to that important anniversary.

Many congregations dispensed with evening services for the first time this season and the majority of churches will conduct morning services only hereafter until the early part of September.

PITTSBURGHER GUEST AT RECEPTION TO ANGELL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 2.—(Special.)—Congressman Daniel L. D. Granger gave a reception at his home on Thayer street last evening in honor of Dr. James B. Angell, president of the University of Michigan, who is visiting here. Among those invited to meet Dr. Angell was William E. Lincoln of Pittsburgh.

Punishment for Unruly Husbands.

Unruly husbands received punishment at the police court hearings in the two cities yesterday morning. Thomas Foley of Oakland was fined $25 or sixty days. Peter Shinder of Spring alley was fined $25. Frederick Alley of 1019 Robinson street and August Kalmeyer of Winters street, Allegheny, were each fined $10 for abusing their families.

ST. PETER'S NEW CHURCH LAYS CORNER STONE

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 2.—In the presence of 10,000 people, the cornerstone of the new St. Peter's Roman Catholic church was laid today by the Right Rev. J. J. Hartley, bishop of the Columbus diocese. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Father L. J. Kearney of Zanesville. The ceremonies were preceded by a large parade, in which many Catholic societies marched.

The church, which is to cost $100,000, is being erected at Fourth and Clinton streets. St. Peter's church has the distinction of being the cradle of Roman Catholicism in this part of Ohio. Among the first of the priests who worked zealously among the settlers of the Catholic faith was the Rev. Father McGuire of Pittsburgh. The priests who have filled St. Peter's pulpit since 1835 are Fathers James Conlan, James Kearney, T. O'Farrell, Emanuel Thienpont, William T. Bigelow, Thomas M. Tuomy, J. A. Murray, H. B. Dues, B. Wisman, the Very Rev. Dean, M. M. A. Hartnedy, who had charge for 25 years, and the present rector, the Rev. Thomas Powers.

It was at St. Peter's that Bishop Hartley began his life work as assistant rector. The first church building, a small brick structure, was erected in 1832. The second building, which was torn down to make room for the new edifice, was erected in 1853.

CHAUTAUQUA

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., July 2.—(Special)—Sunday was such a beautiful day that nearly everybody on the grounds attended the services in the amphitheater which were conducted by Bishop Vincent. The sermon was delivered by President Rush Rhees of Rochester university, who took for his text "Paul's Second Letter to the Corinthians," 4th chapter 18th verse. "While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

He said in part:

"It is needful to remember the connection in which these words occur, to continually bear in mind that Paul was a Jew. The keynote of Israel's faith was optimism, which was not simply a mark of temperment but of creed. Let us venture upon somewhat of a paraphrase of the words of the text and say that things seen for a time belong to passing time, and that things not seen belong to triumphant future, not necessarily beyond the gates of death.

"The apostle turned the thoughts to this time of triumph, for comfort, but if it is true that the words are a corollary of the fundamental creed of the people, then the words have as deep significance for times of joy as for times of grief or oppression. We must remind ourselves that things seen are transient, while the things not seen belong to triumphant tomorrow. The things for which men and women strive and to which we must frankly acknowledge we give our energy and life and which we must admit dominate us are the things which are temporal. The voice of prophet, apostle, peer and poet and lesson of history all agree that at the coming of time, God will appear with triumph of righteousness.

"Essential to this triumphant righteousness is realized brotherhood. Besides this triumphant righteousness and realized brotherhood and which belongs to coming time is unhindered fellowship with God. This fellowship with God, this sense of kinship and allegiance to the divine will holds the key of triumph of tomorrow. As things unseen form the key to the triumph of tomorrow, take them and build up to the coming time. Therefore, with joy and pride, with teaching and expectancy, with rest and cheerfulness, let us turn to the apostle's word and know things seen are transient and live so that we have a triumphant tomorrow."

The various Sunday schools were held in the afternoon and were well attended. The soloists for the beginning of the season were heard for the first time at the morning service.

GERMANY PLAYING FAIR IN "OPEN DOOR" POLICY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Taking notice of frequent reports that the German policy in Shantung province in China is not consistent with her reiterated indorsement of the "open door," Baron Speck von Sternberg, the German ambassador, said today that the criticisms he had noticed referred particularly to the 10-mile zone along the lines of Germany's railways in this province in which Germany exercised exclusive mining privileges.

"Germany enjoys with regard to her railways in Shantung," the ambassador said, "exactly the same privileges, no more, which all other countries having railways in this province enjoy, including Belgium, Great Britain, America and China. As to the open door in Shantung, it is only necessary to compare the rapid increase of foreign trade in the port of Tsing Tau and the facilities for transportation of non-German goods within the province.

"Nothing could speak more clearly for the fair play enjoyed by all countries which have trade interests in that part of China. Official reports corroborate this statement."

Disarming the Public.

Disarmament of the public goes along slowly but steadily. Arthur King, who was arrested downtown with a revolver in his pocket, was fined $25 yesterday. Alegovis Alexander Lugovish, for firing a revolver in the Hill district, paid a similar fine. Christian Kraul of Grant avenue, Allegheny, accused of threatening to shoot his neighbors, was fined $5. Dominic Conerah of Oakland was fined $10 for carrying an eight-inch stiletto.

Arrest a Crap Shooter.

Sam Segala of No. 5 Tannehill street was arrested yesterday while he was shooting craps at Hazel and Logan streets.

IN ONE PULPIT FOR 25 YEARS

HE PREACHES SPECIAL SERMON

The Rev. Dr. J. T. McCory observed the close of his twenty-fifth year in the pastorate of the Third United Presbyterian church, Diamond street, yesterday morning by delivering a special sermon entitled "The Last Sermon of Twenty-five Years as Pastor of the Third United Presbyterian Church." He took for his text: I Samuel, vii:12, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us," and said in part.

A 25 years' pastorate is not a common thing. Thirteen hundred Sabbaths have passed since this ministry began, and only four days in all that time has your pastor been prevented by sickness from ministering here. But my text would rebuke me if I directed attention to myself or my service. Samuel spoke of what God had done, not of what he or the people had accomplished.

First of all, this text fixes our attention on what is more especially providential. For the most part the divine hand is not evident in the affairs of life. But occasionally there is that of which we must bow our heads and say: "This is the finger of God." Such was the case as to the beginning of this pastorate. There were extraordinary providences in bringing about this settlement. That conviction has been a mighty inspiration and support to me these years. Then we saw God's hand especially in the revival that visited us in 1887; in the proposition to send out and support our own missionary in India, the first offer of the kind ever made in our church, but which has been followed by several congregations since. The vexing question of the version of the psalms and of instrumental music, and the sweet spirit of brotherly love that has prevailed without an hour's interruption while these subjects were adjusting themselves speaks of the presence of God in an unusual way.

For another thing the text reminds us that God has been acting through our agencies. God thundered, but Israel fought, and thus victory was achieved. The spirit of God has been working salvation by means of our public worship. The regular worship of God has been maintained and as you know the spirit of devoutness and solemnity has prevailed. There has, also, been our mid-week meeting for prayer, our Sabbath schools, young people's and missionary societies with pastoral visiting and seasons of special services. Samuel was a great man, but he was not great enough to drive out the Philistines alone. God used the entire people as his agency for that purpose.

The text reminds us that we have not reached the goal, but just a step in our progress toward the achievement of the divine purpose in our existence. A point had been reached, a point of vantage, too, but little more than a beginning had been made toward the purpose of the chosen people. While we thank God today and take courage as we recall the past, there is still a great work to be done by this congregation. Like Israel, too, at Ebenezer, we have reached a crisis in our history. God has committed a great trust to our keeping and laid a great responsibility for the cause of Christ in this city on your shoulders. While there are saints to be comforted, there are sinners to be converted to Christ. Not alone in India and Egypt and the southland are there multitudes calling for the water of life, but right here in our midst there are tens of thousands to be evangelized and this church must not lose its touch with these multitudes.

The text reminds us that the favor of God deserves the special expression of gratitude on the part of the favored people. Shall we renew our promises to God and to one another at this time as an expression of our gratitude? Surely God hath done great things for us whereof we ought to be glad. Let us be glad and rejoice and give honor to Him through whose mercy we have enjoyed 25 years of marked and uninterrupted blessing and prosperity.

Dr. McCrory is a native of Washington county, Ohio, and was graduated from Monmouth college and Xenia seminary. His first charge was in North Hendersonville, Ill., where he served from 1877 to 1880. He became pastor of the Third church on July 11, 1880, and has been a member of the board of church extension of the United Presbyterian denomination for over a quarter of a century.

TAKES GAZETTE READERS RIGHT ON TO FIRING LINE

Those who love the roar and clash of battle are taken directly on to the firing line in Francis McCullagh's great story of the battle of Mukden, as related in The Sunday Gazette. Not a detail of this mighty, pivotal struggle in the Russo-Jap war is omitted. Mr. McCullagh was right in the thick of the fight, and the tale of bloodshed in all of its grim detail is most graphically described. That story, however, is but one feature of yesterday's great paper. It was a perfect magazine in itself. Real estate men will find statistics of value in Lane's review of transactions of the past six months. Every sale of $20,000 or over in Greater Pittsburgh is recalled. There are the usual bright fiction tales, features and departments, all of which go to make The Sunday Gazette one of the greatest periodicals ever issued. As to the news of the world, there was plenty of it, some of the many important happenings being as follows:

Foreign nations were profoundly grieved at the news of Secretary Hay's death. His funeral services will be held at Cleveland. France's agreement to the principle of a conference in the Moroccan affair practically closes the controversy with Germany. Mutineers in command of war ships threaten to bombard Odessa unless the city is surrendered to them inside of 48 hours. Sweden has taken active measures for her defense.

An evicted farmer living near Coshocton lay in wait for his landlord and murdered him. Eighteen prominent officials of meat-packing companies, including J. Ogden Armour, were indicted by the federal grand jury at Chicago, charged with the violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The Isthmian canal commission will investigate the condition of work done in Panama. Israel W. Durham has resigned as state insurance commissioner and former Senator David Martin has been appointed by Gov. Pennypacker as his successor.

Announcement was made that School of Applied Science of Carnegie Technical school will open October 16. Gymnasium for Zionists will be built on Center avenue property. Eighteenth regiment did not give miniature fac-simile of the battle of Mukden. H. C. Frick signed waiver for 15-foot hump cut to be completed within 18 months. Bethany Lutheran congregation bought former First Congregational church in Allegheny. The Amalgamated association wage committee appointed a sub-committee to present a new compromise proposition to the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company officials. Former Councilman W. H. Stevenson warmly scored the city administration. Judge Shafer handed down the largest list of liquor license transfers for one day that has been filed for nine years. E. Meade Whippo was sent to the workhouse for three years on embezzlement charges. Department of public works of Pittsburgh was given 30 days by Judge McClung to file a report on the widening of Second avenue.

Rain prevented the game between Pittsburgh and St. Louis. Marvin Hart and Jack Root are ready for their fight at Reno, Nev., today. Twenty thousand people saw Sysonby win the handicap at Sheepshead. President Pulliam of the National league wrote a letter in which he renews his stand for clean baseball. Hans Wagner is again the leading National league batsman.

New York stocks strong under the leadership of the Eries, tractions and United States Steel. Weekly bank statement showed a large increase in loans and a small decrease in surplus reserve. In the local markets Pittsburgh Oil and Gas broke to 51 and reacted to 58. Wheat lost on profit taking.

Relief Society's Annual Picnic.

The Crescent Steel Works relief society will hold its third annual picnic August 12 at Olympia park. Sports of all kinds will be included in the program which is being prepared by the committee in charge.

Fines for Fighters.

Maud Brown and Herbert Johnston were gathered in Saturday night while they were fighting. Maud was said to have been drunk and the aggressor. She was fined $25 and Johnston $10.

TWO AUTOMOBILISTS AID POLICEMAN IN A BATTLE

Man and Woman in a Car Arrive at a Time When Help Is Needed.

Two automobilists, a man and a woman, rendered timely aid to a policeman, prevented him from being overpowered, and perhaps killed, assisted him to capture a prisoner, and stole away as silently as if they were afraid of being charged with fast driving.

Policeman Joseph Leech was standing at the entrance to Schenley park Saturday evening when John McNeely, a blacksmith of Frazier street, attacked him. McNeely, who is a big, powerful man, slipped up behind Leech, kicked him in the side and knocked him down. Leech rose to his feet and McNeely kicked him again in the groin. As he fell Leech dragged McNeely with him.

Leech, who was suffering intense pain, was rapidly getting the worst of the battle when an automobile, containing a man and a woman, drove up rapidly. The big machine stopped suddenly, both occupants jumped out and rushed to the rescue of the policeman. They pulled McNeely off Leech and held him down until the policeman could get his nippers on his assailant. Then they assisted Leech in getting McNeely to a patrol box. Without a word the automobilists jumped into their car and sped away.

This is not the only mystery connected with the affair. The other is that Leech has no idea why McNeely attacked him and the prisoner will not tell. Leech is laid up with his injuries and McNeely is being held on a charge of aggravated assault and battery.

BABY SHOW AT PICNIC.

Novel Feature for St. Paul's Orphan Asylum Benefit—Bachelors to Be the Judges.

There is to be a baby show at the St. Paul's Orphans' picnic on July 12 and 13. This distinctively new feature was decided upon at a meeting of the managers held last night in the Washington street lyceum. The proposition was debated at some length before being approved. As finally settled, a distinctive show will be held each day of the picnic with plenty of prizes. The latter will be awarded by five judges, who will be different each day. Chairman A. S. McSwigan was authorized to appoint the judges, but was restricted in his choice to bachelors. The managers held that married men would be inclined to favor the style of beauty that most favored that of their own children.

Chairman McSwigan announced that he had secured the donation of a lot that will be raffled off. The location and method of disposing of it will be made public in a few days. Several thousand additional tickets were called for and distributed.

Next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock Chairmen McSwigan and Father Lynch will met the ladies of the different parishes at Calhoun park and fix the locations of the tables and booths.

WALL STREET SPECULATION OF THE CLIQUE VARIETY

Business Increased Somewhat the Past Week, but Distribution Was Poor—Dealings in Bonds Contracted.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, July 2.—In its general characteristics, the week just closed in the financial markets was similar to its predecessor. Business in speculative stocks increased somewhat, but the distribution was poor and continued largely of the pool and clique variety. Dealings in bonds contracted somewhat, and the heavy operations in Japanese issues, which went far toward making up the total, were consummated upon a declining scale, a natural enough reflection of another impending issue. Upon the whole the bond division was not satisfactory, particularly so in view of the expectations, created semi-annually, of what is to precede or follow immediately the heavy half yearly interest and dividend disbursements.

The course of the week's stock market, at least so far as its superficial movements were concerned, fitted in very well with the prevailing theories of an organized movement conducted for the purpose of changing sentiment to permit the distribution of security holdings. This theory, as is well known, is based partly upon known facts and partly upon the experiences of the past, from which some interesting deductions are drawn. For instance, it is a matter of common notoriety that commission houses are not heavy borrowers of money, as compared with the past, from which fact, even if the lack of public participation in the market were not well known and subject to ocular proof, the inference is drawn that stocks are not extensively in public hands. At the same time, from the recent report of the controller of the currency on national banks, from the state report on trust companies and from the weekly statement of association banks, the fact of an enormous loan expansion is made clear.

To be sure there may be a different kind of public than the Wall street of the past was familiar with, and brokers frequently call attention to the enormous scale upon which certain individuals operate as compared with those of the past, so that a few men now take the place and more than supply the business of the many of some years back. Such may be the case, and if so, it would render easier the work of a concentrated market movement. But what of it, in the end, if groups of great operators combined start a market spinning. They never yet were actuated by any philanthropic motive, and to make their movement a success they must realize or distribute their stocks to others, whether there be numerous small fry or a group of large operators less nimble than themselves.

It would seem from the loan accounts of the banks, from the increased security holdings of such institutions, from the absence of a diversified public in the market, from the concentration of speculative operations in the hands of great plungers, and in fact, from the pool and clique character of the business in Wall street that not only conditions, but the motives and the machinery in the market were highly favorable to the theory of an organized movement, devised for the purpose of distributing stock holdings.

Of one thing there need be no question. All of Wall street's machinery will be employed to create the necessary buyers. It has, in fact, already been set in motion. The same old deal and rumor stories which have done such remarkable service in the past are being revived, there is a hushing up of the criticisms of rotten corporation methods which proved so disturbing to sentiment, and with it all a revival of the pool and clique work in a rather limited range of issues to advance which all the tricks of the trade are employed for the purpose of impressing the rank and file. One may note all this in the advertising columns of the newspapers, where the tipster, failing in other avenues of getting their allurements before the public, advertise remarkable impending movements and "make good" for the money advanced or the "calls" on stock given to them by persons preparing to rig the market" and entrap the unwary.

Obviously, however, if the traders who advance the theory that there is an organized movement in the market to change sentiment and distribute security holdings, that it is more nearly logical, if they actually believe in their own theories, to move with the current of the great scheme than to oppose it.

The theory of an organized distributive movement is certainly not pleasant when carried to its logical conclusions. It plays upon the ignorance and credulity of the in-expert speculators, over estimating markets, magnifying some developments out of all proportion, and suppressing the unfavorable side of others, or reversing the process to suit its own ends. But in addition to this is an element which pervades all humanity—cupidity, the desire of getting something for nothing, which fosters the gambling spirit and makes possible the terrible losses, the defalcations, the suicides and all the other attendant miseries which follow in the train of speculation. If men could only be induced to buy for cash, pay for what they purchase and to confine themselves to better class securities, bought on a basis of reasonable income yield, there would be pleasanter stories to tell of Wall street. To be effective, warnings should be issued in advance, not after possible occurrences, and this is pertinent of the present speculative market.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN THE LOCAL MARKET

The month of June just closed has proved the best in a business way local dealers have enjoyed for six months or more, and as much business was transacted in Liberty street as was enjoyed in any three months during the winter, not even excepting the Christmas season. The last week was particularly good, and all cause for complaint of dullness seems to have disappeared.

There were no changes to note in quotations Saturday, all lines proving remarkably firm. Fruits and vegetables are both enjoying good prices and a brisk trade. Butter is much easier than it was the first of the week and a reduction of a half-cent is looked for at the Elgin board meeting today. Eggs are dragging at the present price of 17½ and 18 cents, and a break is anticipated soon. The cheese market is holding its own, but shows a little sympathy with butter and may drop today.

Flour has been firm all week. An advance was looked for Saturday, but was not ordered. Local dealers are a little in doubt as to the flour situation. The millers seem to have made no move toward higher prices, although wheat has made remarkable advances during the week. Sugar is steady at the last cut at present, but deeper cuts are looked for.

ALLEGED MASHER IS NOW NURSING A BROKEN NOSE

John Gaul of Knoxville is in the South Side police station nursing a broken nose. Gaul was standing on the corner of South Eighteenth and Carson streets yesterday morning, and it is said he was making offensive remarks to women as they passed. A citizen whose name is unknown to the hero fund commission, struck Gaul on the nose, breaking it and knocking him down. At this time a policeman arrived and after taking Gaul to the South Side hospital for repairs, locked him up.

Must Close at 10 O'Clock.

George Lutze a Greek shoeblack with a shop in Butler street, near Thirty-eighth street, was arrested yesterday for not closing his place at 10 o'clock in the morning as the city ordinance provides.

INITIAL TRAIN ONE YEAR AGO

Wabash Pittsburgh Terminal Railway Passes Its First Anniversary of Operation.

GROWTH IN ITS TERRITORY

"The Goulds builded better than they knew."

This expression has been used scores of times by railroad magnates who have visited Pittsburgh in the past year, and will be made with more force by railroad men and the public in a decade from now when speaking of the Pittsburgh line of the Wabash system, which was a year old yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. As one of the 250 Pittsburghers who were guests on that memorable opening trip of the "Ramsey Special" sat at the observation window of the parlor car on the Wheeling express at that hour yesterday—exactly to the hour a year from the opening of the road—and quietly moved out from the magnificent passenger terminal and over the splendid cantilever bridge, he was impressed with what the Wabash has meant for Pittsburgh in its first year. Much of this meaning must remain as a silent influence in Pittsburgh's transportation history.

It is said $23,000,000 has been spent by George J. Gould and his associates for the extension into this traffic gold mine. Had Mr. Gould ridden out of Pittsburgh on the hour of the first anniversary he would have been pleased, not only with the excellent roadway and terminals planned and built by his able lieutenant, Joseph Ramsey, Jr., but also with the many evidences of a traffic to be proud of.

Growth in Traffic Facilities.

When the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal railway was opened a year ago there were three outbound and three inbound through trains put into service between Pittsburgh and western cities. On the first anniversary more than a score of first-class passenger trains are operating with improved through service and with a good service to Cleveland, Wheeling and local points, all pleasing to a large patronage. For almost half the year there was no freight hauling. On the anniversary—the semi-anniversary, one may say, of the freight business—one could see several long trains of coal and some steel products and other freight on the line between Pittsburgh and the Ohio river at Mingo Junction, and this was on Sunday, a quiet traffic day.

Opening a New Country.

As one glides along over the solid roadbed he observes pretty, substantial, roomy station buildings and sidings usually filled with cars for local freight at Rook, Carnegie, Bridgeville, Hickory and Pryor, while other towns and stopping points are provided with good temporary quarters.

Hard by the new stations one may see new dwelling houses and store buildings, some already completed, some under construction and others just starting. Gangs of railroad laborers resting on the anniversary only because it was Sunday—are also in evidence at a number of places near which the second track work is under way.

Nature has not changed the pristine beauty of the country through which the Wabash passes—a beautiful virgin countryside where the groves are still God's temples. The hills and dells with their shady woods and cooling streams, attract the attention of him of the city canons, while fields of fine crops also please the eye of him who knows the value of excellent farms.

Trains Glide Over Solid Bed.

As the 12-car initial train—10 large Pullman cars, President Ramsey's private car and a commissary car (the latter a combined smoker and baggage car, by the way, being on the Wheeling express coincidentally last evening)—as that train passed over the new road a year ago it swayed occasionally with the new track. Now the track is set solid in a good roadbed and trains glide around the easy curves, through the tunnels and over the fills pleasantly.

"It doesn't seem only a year ago, does it?" remarked Brakeman F. J. Lugent on the express as the train ran out of the tunnel on to the Mingo bridge last evening. Lugent was one of the crew with Conductor W. H. McCluskey on the Ramsey special a year ago. "That was a grand sight and must have pleased Mr. Ramsey almost as much as any phase of the big trip—that long double line of his 250 guests along the well-laden luncheon table on this bridge."

When the Ramsey Special Ran.

The Wabash Pittsburgh Terminal railway was formally opened at 4 o'clock p. m., July 2, 1904, when the Ramsey special started with 250 officials of Allegheny county, Pittsburgh and Allegheny and a dozen newspaper men, to St. Louis. The hosts aiding President Ramsey were Vice President and Chief Engineer James W. Patterson, General Passenger and Ticket Agent Charles S. Crane, Assistant General Freight Agent W. D. Holliday, Assistant Traveling Passenger Agent F. H. Tristram, Traveling Passenger Agent Charles Hamilton, Superintendent of Mails N. P. Ramsey and Manager of Dining Service Dwight Carson. The train reached the Wabash world's fair station at noon July 3, when an elaborate luncheon was served, the guests then being given the freedom of the city and the world's fair until 11 o'clock p. m., July 4, when the return trip was begun. The train reached Pittsburgh the next evening.

In Competent Hands.

With such able railroad men in charge as President F. A. Delano, Vice President B. A. Worthington, General Manager Robert Blickensderfer and Messrs. Crane, Tristram and Holliday, the future of the Wabash as a Pittsburgh traffic line is assured. Mr. Gould will see that the road and terminals planned by Mr. Ramsey and Mr. Patterson will be carried to early completion.

ELECT NEW OFFICERS.

Gaelic Society Holds Annual Meeting and Reports Indicate That Its Condition Is Flourishing.

The O'Growney Gaelic society held its annual meeting for the election of officers and committees and the presentation of reports of outgoing officers, on Saturday evening, in the assembly hall of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, Washington street. The reports disclosed the society in a flourishing condition, the membership having more than doubled during the past year, and there is now a substantial balance in bank to the society's credit. The librarian's report showed that upwards of 400 books had been sold during the term.

Of the outgoing officers, the president and treasurer were re-elected; the two secretaries, Messrs. O'Meally and Henaghan, and the librarian, Mr. MacGillian, were compelled by pressure of other duties to decline renomination. All of the executive officers were elected unanimously, while for membership of committees there was considerable friendly rivalry. The new officers and committees are as follows:

President, Jeremiah McCarthy; vice president, Patrick O'Gara; treasurer, John Finn; recording secretary, Miss Delia Hogan; financial secretary, Joseph Conroy; librarian, Patrick Walsh; editor, Patrick J. Cronin; language committee, Misses Bridget O'Malley, Nellie Fitzgerald, Messrs. Michael O'Meally, John Finn, Michael O'Sullivan, Joseph Conroy, Bernard MacGillian; history committee, Miss Margaret Lennon, Patrick J. H. K. TYLER A CANDIDATE.

Says He May Run for Mayor of Allegheny as an Independent.

Maj. Horatio Kelsey Tyler of Allegheny announced yesterday that he is a candidate for mayor to succeed James G. Wyman. He is a pension agent on the North Side and has been an active politician for the past quarter of a century. In 1881 he ran for mayor against William M. Kennedy and was defeated by a small vote.

"I am going to be a candidate, regardless of any and all political arrangements or compacts," said Maj. Tyler yesterday. "I have not decided yet whether or not I shall enter the Republican primaries or run independent of any party, but it is likely I shall adopt the latter plan. In 1881 was defeated by 800 votes. I'm better known than I was 15 years ago and I am going into this fight confident of the result."

Maj. Tyler is vice president of the War Veterans' association of Allegheny.

Reduces Rates to Korea.

The Postal Telegraph and Cable company has announced that taking effect July 1 the rate to Korea will be reduced 20 cents per word via the Commercial Pacific cable. To Chemulpo, Fusan and Seoul the rate will be $1.21 per word beyond San Francisco and to other places in Korea $1.39 per word beyond San Francisco.

Queen of the Orient.

May Lee, a Caucasian, has no fear of the yellow peril. She has been ruling her saffron-hued subjects from a Chinese restaurant in Second avenue. This being in conflict with the principles of a republic, she was fined $50 by Magistrate Moke yesterday. One of her courtiers paid the indemnity.

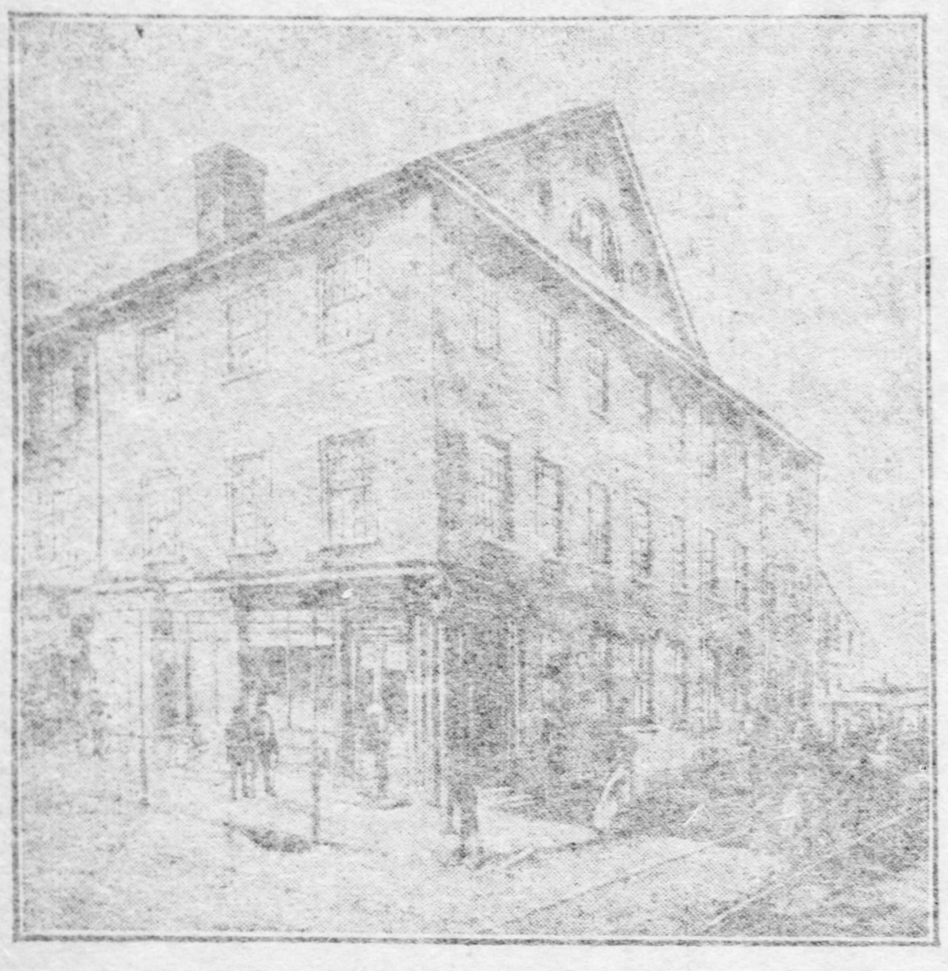
ANCIENT BUILDING IN WHICH THE UNION NATIONAL BEGAN BUSINESS



The Cradle of a Great Banking House.

The Union National bank, which has consolidated with the old private banking house of N. Holmes & Sons, and which will remove its business to the building at Fourth avenue and Wood street, now occupied by the private bank, began business in the old-fashioned building shown above. The building stood on the present site of the Union National bank building, at Fourth avenue and Market street, in 1857, when the Union Banking Company, out of which the Union National bank grew, was organized. While the bank is one of the oldest financial institutions in this state, it has kept abreast of the times and has proved in its 48 years of business to be one of the best money making enterprises ever established in Pittsburgh. Among the big national banks of the United States the Union National holds seventh place on what is known as the roll of honor.

POOR SHOW FOR NEW POOLS DISCOURAGES THE DRILLERS

Developments in the lower southwest fields differed but little from those of the preceding week and the prospects for new producing territory are no more promising than at any time during the earlier part of the year. The search has not been abandoned, but all that has been accomplished has been to show the localities in which the producing formation does not exist, without the semblance of an indication of the most likely locality in which to look. Hundreds of test wells have been drilled in looking for new pools or extensions to the old, and the long list of dry holes that has been reported from month to month is in striking evidence as to how meager has been the result. Development work in the lower southwest has reached that stage that a good producer does not show to any degree of certainty what can be found a single location in advance in any direction. Operators have not hesitated to make every effort to advance the producing lines, but almost invariably dry holes have been encountered as soon as the work with that end in view had been completed.

When at odd times a good well has been found in what looked to be a new pool, operators have not always been conservative in starting new work and as a result a large amount of capital has been invested without bringing any returns. This is true in particular of the deep sand districts, where the cost of drilling is very heavy. It was hoped early in the year that the deep sand districts would be capable of supplying enough production to prevent a decline, but such has not been the case. Folsom, Pine Grove, Fairview and other deep sand districts gave up the best of their production last year, and no amount of work was able to prevent each from showing a marked decline in production. Operations have now declined and there is less than one-half the amount of work doing in each as at the beginning of the year. It seems now that if a still further decline in production of high crude is to be avoided a new source of supply will have to be discovered. In the production of low grade crude, such as is found west of the Mississippi river, the same question does not enter into the present conditions. How to take care of and market the rapidly increasing production in the west and southwest is the vexed problem at this time.

In the eastern fields, the most active district in the lower southwest is on Yellow creek, Calhoun county. Recently an extension has been found to the northeast and the wells are of such calibre as to lead to the belief that the end of the producing formation has not been reached in that direction. Operations are increasing in that section and will show no decline, so long as wells with an average initial production of 50 or 60 barrels a day can be found. As compared with the number of wells completed in the Yellow Creek district, fewer dry holes have been encountered than at any time since the development of the old Sistersville field. The oil is found in the Maxon, salt sand and Berea grit formations. That found in the Maxon is black, but the greater volume is found in the Berea grit and is of the highest grade. For a time it was thought that a Cow Run sand pool could be developed in the same county, at the mouth of Big Root creek, but six or eight failures have dissipated the hope and caused an abandonment of operations.

The best producer completed during the week was the South Penn Oil Company's No. 7 on the J. L. Price farm, northeast of Folsom, near the Wetzel-Harrison line. When drilled into the Gordon it showed for a light producer, but deeper drilling developed a second pay, and it started to produce at the rate of 200 barrels a day. It is inside of defined limits, and is not important, aside from its size.

West of Mannington, in the 30-foot district, development work has come to a standstill. There is no new work starting. Early in the year there was at one time 30 wells drilling in the pool. The production of the old producers has declined and at this time there is not a well in the field that has an individual production of 100 barrels a day. The decline has been so marked that scarcely a farm, some of which have a dozen wells, has a production of 150 barrels a day.

Operators on the Ohio side have had no better success in finding new producing territory than those who have been searching in West Virginia. Near Woodsfield and Jerusalem, Monroe county, the outlook for a Keener sand pool near Woodfield called out considerable new work, but in less than a month the limits of the producing territory had been defined. Southeast of Jerusalem the same can be said of the Big Lime development. A few good producers were found in each pool; then came light wells and later dusters.

In the northeast of Guernsey county, near the Harrison county line and about four miles southwest of Piedmont, operators are looking for a new pool. Some months ago the Oak Grove Oil company completed a well on the Hibbs farm that has been averaging 20 barrels a day. Previous to the completion of the Hibbs farm test some prospecting had been done in that locality, but the result was so unsatisfactory that nothing more was done in the way of drilling test wells till the one on the Nibbs farm was put down. The showing is good enough to encourage the starting of some new work.

On Wells creek, north of Steubenville, Jefferson county, two new producers were completed during the week and make the prospects for a pool of some kind brighter. There are five or six new wells starting in that locality.

There is nothing to warrant the belief that the fourth sand pool, west of Butler, will be able to make good. Two very light wells to the south and southeast of the McBride gusher were completed during the past week. The production of the pool is now less than 500 barrels a day. Unless some good producers can be found to the northeast, the only direction not yet tested, there will be no hope of again increasing the production.

F. H. Oliphant, from advance sheets of his forthcoming report, shows the quantity and value of crude oil produced in the United States in 1904, as determined by the United States geological survey:

DYNAMITE IS BARRED.

Director Scandrett Takes Steps in Interest of Safety in Allegheny.

Director Thomas B. Scandrett, of the Allegheny department of public safety, last night issued an order to the North Side police through Acting Superintendent John Glenn regarding the use of fireworks and other explosives on the Fourth. The order is to the effect that no explosives of any kind shall be placed on street car tracks, nor shall the explosion of dynamite or nitroglycerine crackers be allowed within the city limits, shooting canes of all kinds are also prohibited.

The police are authorized to arrest all persons violating this order. The order has another important provision, that the explosion of all kinds of fireworks and torpedoes must be kept out of the alleys. The celebration of the Fourth must not be begun before 12 o'clock tonight and must not be continued after 12 o'clock tomorrow night.
